SLAVERY EXPOSE IN NEW MILL

The Sunday AMERICAN will publish next Sunday a startling expose of conditions in a great manufacturing plant in Worcester County, where women are employed in heart-breaking, soul-racking, body-killing work.

This story will arouse public sympathy and indignation, just as the expose did which the AMERICAN printed a fortnight ago regarding employment of women and girls as coremakers in the foundry department of the Blake-Knowles pump works at East Cambridge.

This story will form a second chapter in the so-called "foundry scandal."

It will be another startling development in the AMERICAN'S campaign to make it impossible for rich corporations to force women to do manual work that is suited only to masculine strength and endurance.

In Worcester county there is a powerful corporation, employing thousands of hands. Women, many of them poor widows struggling to support their fatherless little ones, toil and slave in the ill ventilated, ill-lighted departments of this Worcester county plant.

Their work is terrible. It is grossly unfitted for a woman's slender strength. Women break down under its dense strain. They are forced to lay off, even when facing, as they always do, the loss of the pitiful privilege of working at all.

When they can toil no more, when exhausted nature simply compels them to remain in their miserable homes to regain enough strength to return to their work, they go back to the corporation's plant and resume the killing burden.

Women Break Down Under Strain.

The AMERICAN next Sunday will name this plant. It will describe it in detail. It will tell of the work these women do, how they do it, how they break down under it, how they sacrifice their strength for a few hard-earned dollars, the lowest price of existence.

This article will be fully illustrated.

It will contain personal stories of the women victims of this corporation greed.

It will contain the testimony of physicians to the deadly effects of this labor.

It will also contain the corporation's excuse, such as it is.

One of these women victims is a widow with several young children. She works for a time in this corporation's plant. She stands the strain till she is worn out. Then she crawls home to rest. As soon as she is able—ever-mindful of the "value" of her job, she goes wearily and drearily back to her task. The children must be supported and there is no surcease from the labor, so long as body and soul hold together.

This widow's story, which you will read in next Sunday's AMERICAN, is pitiful enough to bring tears to the eyes.

It is a tragedy of labor, told in simple, homely words.

The testimony of physicians, which this article next Sunday will contain, is the plain, unbiased statement of the medical profession which has followed this situation closely. "The doctor knows," as they say.

In all, this article next Sunday will be another sledge-hammer blow for the cause of humanity.

Sunday American Expose.

Two weeks ago the AMERICAN printed a double-page broadside, exposing conditions under which women and girls work in the foundry department of the Blake-Knowles Pump Works at East Cambridge. This story created a tremendous agitation. Employment of women as coremakers, under unsuitable conditions, was roundly denounced by union labor, by clergymen, by social settlement workers and by many others active in social and industrial betterment.

The AMERICAN was warmly praised for its exposure of the East Cambridge situation.

The Democratic State convention yesterday took a firm stand for legislation to make impossible all unsuitable work for women. Candidates for State offices at the coming election are being asked to pledge themselves to work for a law to prohibit such unsuitable employment of women and girls.

The employment of women and girls as coremakers, as exposed by the AMERICAN a fortnight ago, is one case.

This Worcester county situation, which will be dealt with forcibly in next Sunday's AMERICAN, is another.

This article will appeal to everyone who has the slightest interest in the social and industrial advancement of the Commonwealth.

Get the AMERICAN next Sunday and read the Worcester county expose.

LIFT ATTACHMENTS AGAINST T. G. PLANT

Attachments on two bank accounts of Thomas G. Plant, the retired shoe manufacturer, one of $10,930 in the National Bank of Commerce and one of $1,889 in the First National Bank, were released in the Superior Court, during the divorce proceedings brought against Mr. Plant by his wife, Caroline G. Plant. The case has not yet been settled, although efforts to that end have been made for some time.

100,000 SEE GREAT MARATHON

At Randolph Sockalexis was 400 yards in the lead, with Harrop second and Galvin third. They were far ahead of the rest of the runners, who were bunched.

One hundred thousand persons saw the great Brockton Fair Marathon race to-day. Forty-six men took part in the race over the twenty-three and one-half mile course from the Boston Athletic Association clubhouse on Exeter street to the fair grounds. The finish was twice around the race track at the fair grounds.

Andrew Sockalexis, a fleet-footed Indian who arrived in Boston but an hour before the race started, was a hero all along the line. He is a brother of Sockalexis, the baseball player. Pitted against the great Indian runner was De Mar, winner of the last B. A. A. Marathon, who was a favorite at the start.

Conditions for the race were ideal. The roads were in excellent condition and the cool, fresh wind stimulated the runners, who broke records at various points on the route.

Hackett Stays Out.

William J. Hackett of North Weymouth, winner of last year's Marathon, who made a record of two hours, twenty-seven minutes and nine seconds for the course, did not run to-day.

The runners got way in a bunch at just 12 o'clock. Albert Harrop of Fall River, who is also a favorite in the race, and Sockalexis, the Indian runner, led the pace for the first eight miles. The Indian runner kept Harrop in front of him, but time and time again breasted him and did not let the Fall River man get any distance ahead up to the time Mattapan square was passed. In the long climb over the Blue Hills the runners got an awful gruelling, for the pace set by the Indian and the youthful Fall River man was almost a killing one to the less fleet-footed runners.

Five hundred persons cheered the runners at Mattapan square. Harrop and Sockalexis were tied and in the lead with Henry L. McCormick of Providence only a few feet behind. Those following in order were C. L. Carr, Berlin; William Galvin, Mercury A. C. of Yonkers, N. Y.; Joseph M. Lordan, Somerville; Kanastas K. Sturgis, Boylston A. A.; James Cleary, Worcester; R. F. Piggott, Medford, Ernest Peabody, Lynn; Israel Sakind, Roxbury. De Mar, favorite in the race, was running fifteenth. He was taking long and easy strides. He was within striking distance of the leaders at his point.

Forty-seven in Get-away.

The start from the Boston Athletic Association clubhouse on Exeter street was made promptly at 12 o'clock. At the crack of the pistol the forty-seven men got away in a bunch, spreading out as they rounded the corner into Huntington avenue.

Joe Moreno of Dorchester, wearing No. 34, took the lead. He made a sprint as he turned into Huntington avenue and left the bunch some distance behind. He was nearly overtaken by Kanastas K. Sturgis of the Boylston A. A., who kept within ten feet of the leader until Massachusetts avenue was reached. Here the runners were well distributed, with Moreno in the lead, Sturgis second, Israel Sakind of Roxbury third and Henry L. McCormick of Providence fourth.

About 500 enthusiasts saw the start from the clubhouse and there was a crowd of 300 at the corner of Massachusetts and Huntington avenues.

Before the start the men were examined by a physician and every man was pronounced fit for the race. As they lined up at the tape they were photographed.

The runners found some difficulty in dodging teams and automobiles as they rounded into Huntington avenue and as they passed along Massachusetts avenue.

Many Trainers Out.

Every man was attended by one or two trainers who rode bicycles. The trainers carried supplies of witch hazel, towels, oranges, lemons and some were armed with gumdrops, the same that the famous Dr. Cook used in his dash to the North Pole.

As the runners reached Columbia road they got their first test of hill climbing. This proved severe for some of the leaders, who at this point showed some fatigue and slowed down to a dog trot. In the climb upgrade to Franklin park and to Mattapan square the trainers were kept busy urging on their men and administering stimulants.

The cool, bracing air showed its effects on the men, for, after a rest of a minute or so in the brisk, fresh breeze, they were, most of them, ready to get into line again for the gruelling run of twenty-three and one-half miles.

NAVAL WAR IS RAGING ON THE RED SEA

LONDON, Oct. 6.—A Turkish gunboat was sunk to-day by an Italian cruiser in the Red Sea off Hodeidah, and all on board, it is reported, were lost.

This precipitated a naval warfare on the Red Sea which will be kept up until every Turkish boat is sent to the bottom. It is also reported that during the first part of the fight a small boat belonging to the British steamer, Guildhall, was sunk.

BEGIN A WAR OF EXTERMINATION.

The Italian cruiser Aretusa was fired upon by the Turkish fort at Hodeidah, although it had been understood that Italy meant to remain simply on the defensive in those waters.

The Italians were so enraged when the shots boomed out from the fort that they attacked a Turkish gunboat and kept up the fire until she was riddled with bullets and she and her crew were sunk.

Following that the Aretusa, the dispatch boat Staffetta and the repair ship Volcano, all of which are armed, began a war of extermination.

All of the Turkish gunboats are being chased, and they will be sunk. There is probability that the ports of Yemen may be attacked.

Hodeidah is one of the most important ports of Yemen. It is about 100 miles northwest of Mocha and has a population of 45,000.

Martial Law in Tripoli.

The Italians declared martial law in Tripoli, to-day, according to advices received here. Rear Admiral Borredoline was appointed military governor. Captain Caligni is in command of the marines who were landed.

Three other Turkish torpedo boats were sunk, it was reported to-day. Two of them went down under fire from the squadron of Vice-Admiral, the Duke of Abruzzi, off Prevesa, in the Adriatic Sea.

The third Turkish torpedo boat victim was sunk south of Sicily. No details have reached here as to loss of life.

Italy has a naval base at Agosta on the eastern coast of Sicily. The Turkish torpedo boat, it is believed, was trying to steal up under cover of darkness to the small Italian flotilla which has been stationed off Agosta, protecting both the naval base and the tip of the Italian peninsula which reaches down almost to the Sicilian isle.

Sixteen persons were killed in the bombardment of Tripoli by the Italian war fleet, according to a telegram received from Tunis. Of these six were Turkish soldiers, the remaining ten being Jewish residents who remained in the city while it was under fire. The telegram states that 4,000 Europeans still remain in Tripoli.

The Turks are offering no resistance to the occupation of the city by Italian marines. Mosques are filled with zealous Mohammedans, it adds, who are praying that there will be no repetition of the bombardment.

The rigor of the Italian censorship at Tripoli was temporarily relaxed to-day to allow correspondents to notify the outside world of the most important facts of the bombardment. All dispatches were keenly scrutinized. It was learned that during a lull in the Italian fire on the city a delegation of Arabs boarded the flagship Giuseppe Garibaldi, offering submission and begging that the bombardment cease. The German consul also boarded the flagship and asked protection for all foreigners in the city and its environs.

Italy Renews Attacks.

ROME, Oct. 6.—News arrived here to-day, via Constantinople, that the Italian fleet off the Tripolitan coast has begun bombardment of Derna and Bengasi, the two other Tripolitan cities next in importance to Tripoli.

Turkish troops at Bengasi are making stubborn resistance.

With Italian troops already occupying Tripoli, the attacks on Derna and Bengazi were the next logical steps in the conquest and occupation of the surrounding territory. The plan of the Italian commanders is to acquire command of Tripoli speedily, following up the advantage gained when the Italian flag was planted on the citadel at Tripoli.

Troops are being dispatched with all possible speed from Genoa, Leghorn, Ancona and Brindisi to form an army of occupation which shall hold the territories gained by the forces in front.

Now the Italian government announces triumphantly that the Italian forces are occupying the city of Tripoli itself, marines having been landed under guns from the fleet. The marines took formal possession of the city. The exact time of landing was not stated. But it is figured that it must have occurred not earlier than Wednesday night, following the second bombardment of the Turkish forts.

Sixty steamers engaged ordinarily in emigrant traffic, have in the past week been made over to accommodate troops, artillery, horses, ammunition, provisions, and engineering outfits which are now ready to start for Tripoli.

Rush War Material.

Taranto is in a whirl of military preparations. Five hundred sailors and workmen are hurriedly manufacturing war material. The powder and ammunition magazines are being closely guarded by troops.

SYMPHONY'S NEW SEASON BEGINS

The Boston musical season started with the first Symphony concert this afternoon in Symphony Hall. The social and musical sets have returned to town to attend and, as usual, the opening concert was a brilliant spectacle.

When Conductor Max Fiedler raised his baton at 2:30 the auditorium was crowded. The program was marked by the debut of Miss Alma Gluck, the charming young lyric soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, who is winning a big reputation in concert work. She selected for her numbers the famous soprano aria from Charpentier's "Louise" and a little-sung Mozart aria.

Mr. Fiedler began right away with his novelties and performed a "Comedy" overture by Max Reger, the German modernist who does not often go in for comedy. The never-hackneyed Schumann Symphony in B flat major followed and Weber's Jubilee Overture appropriately closed the concert, appropriately because it concludes with a magnificent setting of "God Save the King," which means "America" in this country.

ELOPERS HERE EXPLAIN 'WHY'

Marcel R. Clodio son of Victor Clodio, the opera tenor, explained to-day why he and Mrs. Milton Lloyd Velencia, former wife of a prominent New Yorker, eloped. It was a very simple explanation—they did it because they wanted to and it was nobody's business! The couple are at the Lenox, where the husband was seen to-day.

"You are making a terrible lot of bother over nothing," he said. "What do you want to know?"

"Why you did it, when you did it, and how you did it."

"All right. We did it because we wanted to, and because we considered it no one else's business if we wanted to get married quietly. We had been engaged for five months. I first met my wife about a year ago at a birthday dinner given in her honor at the Bozart. Since then we've seen a lot of each other. And about five months ago we became engaged. We didn't set any special day for the wedding at first. Then about a month later we decided we would be married in six months.

We talked it all over and decided we couldn't wait any longer. Our families had known of the engagement and made no objection, but we didn't tell them about getting married. I phoned to a friend of mine, Joe Desmond, at Armonk, N. Y., and got my friend Wallis Robertson for best man. My sister-in-law, Mrs. Paul Clodio, stood up with my wife, and besides Mr. and Mrs. Desmond the only other people there were Frank Place and his wife, who is my sister. Judge William K. Haviland, a justice of peace, married us.

CARNIVAL TIPS FOR BOATMEN

Big motor boats, little motor boats and medium sized motor boats, are getting entered for the Columbus night carnival and parade by every mail and the carnival manager has his hands full answering telephone inquiries and replying to letters asking further information about the big event.

"How are we going to decorate? Must we spend a lot of money to transform our boat into a bower or a spectacle?" is a frequent question. Not unless you want to. It is not necessary to go to any expense to get into the parade. Nautically, a vessel is considered decorated if she has a flag flying.

There isn't an owner of a motor boat who hasn't a string of signal flags tucked away in his locker. What more do you want? Fifty cents' worth of bunting tastefully arranged would make a boat a likely candidate for a prize.

And even if some other boat carried off a prize think of the fun of participating in this carnival, which is going to be one of the biggest and best celebrations ever held in Boston.

"Why don't you include motor canoes?" is another remark frequently heard.

The AMERICAN is not including canoes of any sort because the Charles Basin is

ITALY IS REPORTED TO BE PLANNING A NEW ROMAN EMPIRE

speaking to-day of the plans for the occupation of Tripoli, said:

"Landing the marines is the first step. The sailors will now be followed by the army, which is anxious to demonstrate that, in its organization and efficiency, it is equal to the navy, and that it will stand comparison with the armies of first-class powers."

Monsignor Bonomelli, bishop of Cremona, and one of the most distinguished of the Roman Catholic prelates, has issued a pastoral letter to the clergy and the Catholics of his diocese on the subject of Tripoli.

In the letter to his diocese the Bishop says:

> War is always a terrible scourge, but as the sunrise of peace is still far off in certain cases like that of Tripoli, it is a hard necessity for the triumph of justice and civilization. It is not blind or arbitrary action or a thirst for conquest which has induced Italy, already too patient and too often deceived, to have recourse of arms; but the necessity for our defence and protection of our economic interests and the vindication of our national dignity, too often overlooked by Turkey, while the Ottoman Empire is crowded with Italian immigrants who bring their strength, their muscles and the influence of their capital into the commerce and industry of the country.

Commends Italy's Action.

The bishop concludes by saying that he approves and encourages the expedition to Tripoli also because next to the tricolor rises the cross; next to the work of civilization stands religion which has freed the world from slavery. Italy certainly will respect the religion of the natives but the work of the missionaries, protected by the State, will produce a salutary transformation.

> In the last days of my life I, a bishop of Christ and an Italian citizen, bless the soldiers with all the strength of my soul. Clergy and the faithful: Let us pray and wait with confidence.

It is reported to be the ambition of King Victor Emmanuel to extend his African possessions and attract there Italian emigration, so as to make a vast Italian empire and resurrect for his house the title of the ancient Roman emperors.

ITALIAN DEPUTY TELLS OF FALL OF TRIPOLI CITY

By SIGNOR FELICE GUIFFRIDA.

Italian deputy on board the Italian warship Coattit.

TRIPOLI, via Malta, Oct. 6.—Tripoli has fallen. The destruction of its forts is complete and its day as a Mohammedan stronghold is over.

The demolition of the fortress has been conducted in as humane a fashion as is compatible with war and with only such loss of life as is unavoidable in an engagement of so decisive a character.

During the bombardment the Tripoli lighthouse was struck by a shell and collapsed. It was immediately realized by Admiral Faravelli that it was a mistake to destroy it and he ordered a reconnoissance party of officers and marines to go ashore to repair the damage. A new lighthouse is necessary, as the old beacon was only a timber structure supported by columns of wood and iron.

When the war is over the first thing to do will be to build another lighthouse. From the report of a landing party which has been received aboard it appears certain that the Turkish troops after the first bombardment, fled into the interior, presumably with the intention of entrenching themselves on the hills behind Tripoli. There they will await orders from Constantinople as to the advisability of continuing resistance or of surrendering.

Awaiting More Troops.

Parties of reconnoisance have been sent ashore and there is some talk of landing a strong detachment, but this, it is believed, will only be a demonstration as the full military occupation of Tripoli, Derna, Benghazi and other points on the coast will take place only when the troops in force have arrived from Sicily, and this I am informed will not be before October 10 or 12.

Contrary to the general belief, it has been discovered that Turkish destroyers are patrolling the sea, and during the night have even attempted to approach our ships and blow them up, but no incidents of any gravity have thus far happened. Our torpedo boats and destroyers have always detected the enemy in time and chased them. The chase has so far, however, been fruitless.

White Flag Waving.

According to a rumor which I cannot verify, two Turkish torpedo boats were sunk by our fleet early this morning.

I am still on board the Coattit and it is difficult to get news on account of the great reserve among the officers. I can only report imperfectly.

While I am sending this message I see a white flag waving in the harbor. Can it be a sign of surrender? Let us hope so.

NEW TUCKER WITNESS FOUND

On the testimony of a new witness discovered in the Tucker reward case, may rest the disposition of the $3,200 reward offered at he time of the Mabel Page murder in 1904 and for which Charles L. Tucker was electrocuted. The new witness is John Watts, a farmhand, employed by Mrs. T. C. Lothrop at Fletcher Corner, South Acton.

At the first hearing of the Tucker reward case before the Weston selectmen interest was centred about Mrs. Mary Jane Strumbert of No. 211 Harvard street, Cambridge, a clairvoyant, who was discovered by the Sunday AMERICAN to be the author of the famous "M. J. S." letter which figured so prominently in the trial of Mrs. Florence M. Dodge, who was convicted of the murder of William A. Heath in Vermont.

Mrs. Strumbert is one of the claimants of the reward, claiming to have seen Tucker commit the crime "through the spirit." Mrs. Strumbert, it was thought, was Chief Mitchell's informant, but the appearance of Watts has added a new phase to the case which may have a decided bearing upon the ultimate disposition of the $3,200.

While nothing definite has been learned about Watts's connection with the famous Tucker case, he is believed to be the "mysterious witness" who furnished Chief Mitchell of the Newton police with the information which led to the arrest of Tucker. Watts's name has never before been mentioned in connection with the case, but many believe that from statements he has made in reference to incidents near the Page home on the day of the murder, it was he who supplied the police with the clew which solved the mystery surrounding the tragedy.

The selectmen of Weston have been in constant communication with Watts since September 26, the day of the primaries at Weston. Watts was present at the primaries on that day and told the selectmen he had valuable information in connection with the Page murder which he wished to make known.

The selectmen were busy, with the business of the primaries and had no chance to give him a hearing. His name and address were taken, however, and he was notified by mail to be present at the next hearing. No time has been set for this hearing but the date will be established as soon as word is received from Alden Kinsbury of Weston, one of the claimants of the reward, who is now in the West.

Persons living in South Acton know but little of Watts. He has worked on Mrs. Lothrop's farm about five weeks and has been regarded as a quiet, inoffensive sort of man. Some of the persons living near Mrs. Lothrop say Watts has acted strangely at times and are of the opinion he is a trifle eccentric.

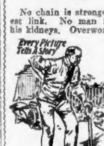

FAMILIES FLEE AT EVERETT FIRE

Ten persons, including six children, were driven into the street early to-day, during a fire in the two-story wooden dwelling at No. 128 High street, Everett. Only the timely discovery of the blaze by Patrolman John Lonergan of the Everett force prevented the occupants from being suffocated.

The first floor was occupied by George Poole, his wife and four children, and the top floor by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Morang and their two children. Lonergan, while passing the house on his way to the police station, smelled smoke. He traced the odor to the rear of the house and found flames bursting from the windows. Arousing the Morang family, Lonergan sounded an alarm and returned to assist Mr. and Mrs. Poole out of the house with their children.

There was a dull, grinding pain in the small of my back and it was only with difficulty that I could straighten after stooping. The kidney secretions were highly colored and irregular in passage and I did not sleep well. I doctored faithfully, but the physicians seemed unable to help me. Through the use of Doan's Kidney Pills my health was restored and my kidneys became normal."

Vast Italian Empire Planned

ROME, Oct. 6.—A policy of colonization on a scale unequaled since the days of imperial Rome, when this city was known as the mistress of the world, is being planned by the Italian government to be put into effect when the Turco-Italian war ends.

King Victor Emmanuel to-day expressed satisfaction when apprised of the occupation of Fort Sultanieh in Tripoli by Italian forces. He declared to his ministers that he hoped the Italian Red Sea colony and the new possessions in Northern Africa would attract Italian immigration and turn the tide away from the United States. "May we look for a re-establishment of a vast Italian empire," King Victor exclaimed. "I only hope I may resurrect for my successors the title of the ancient Roman Emperors."

MACKAY TRAINS BOY FOR BATTLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—John W. Mackay, four years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay, has a future planned out for him that should make him, even as a young man, one of the notable figures in the field of large commercial achievement to which the major part of the Mackay fortune is devoted.

He is to be trained to take up the work which first aroused the business enthusiasm and fighting spirit of his grandfather, and which has been ably carried on by his father in the management and direction of the affairs of the Postal Telegraph Cable Company.

In the current issue of the Postal Telegraph, the official organ of the company, a portrait of Master Mackay appears on the cover page and beneath it this caption:

JOHN W. MACKAY
(4 years old).
The boy who is expected to be a man and to fight the Western Union on land and sea in the coming days.

It is a big job to which the life of Master Mackay has been dedicated, but with the heritage of the spirit of his forebears the younger Mackay will undoubtedly welcome the task set for him the more because it is a fighting job and a big one.

From its inception the Postal has had to fight every inch of its way into widespread and almost universal commercial reach and into the favor of the public against a large and well-established concern that disputed even a field for rivalry, and when driven from that position resorted to every means in its power to obstruct or check the growth of a competitive concern.

MRS. WORLAND SEEKS MISSING HUSBAND

Broken-hearted over the continued absence of her husband, Mrs. J. T. Worland of No. 1 Second street, South Framingham, has appealed to the AMERICAN to try to locate him. Her letter follows: "Will you kindly help me to locate my husband, Joseph T. Worland. He left here on August 6 and went to New York city to find a position as chauffeur. He did find work with a man named N. Howe but left him on August 11. Later Mr. Howe wrote me saying he learned that Mr. Worland went with an aeroplane concern as mechanic, to start for Los Angeles September 1 to give exhibition flights through the Southwest. I thought he might have gone with Fowler or Rogers, the airmen, who were in the hearst $50,000 contest. I am nearly insane with grief."

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR DESTROYER

Delights Society Leader

After Trying Numerous Things Without Success, Mrs. W. B. Jenkins Finds Professor Smith's Tripose Method Kills Hair, Never to Return

Free Coupon From This Paper Brings Detailed Secret to You

So many promised "cures" for superfluous hair have been falsely exploited in the past by ignorant or untruthful people, that most women have given up trying to find a cure.

Here, however, is glad news for all afflicted.

Here is a Method invented by a famous English Professor of Chemistry, whose name and standing lift his discovery far above the level of doubt or failure.

Here is a Method made known and offered to the public by a reliable chartered Society of Chemists, whose recommendation is worth something.

Here is a Method endorsed by leading physicians, after thorough trial.

Here is a Method used and recommended by fashionable women of society, one of whom, Mrs. W. B. Jenkins, of Scranton, Pa., has publicly admitted her complete and permanent cure from a bad growth of Superfluous Hair, after many advertised things (including Electricity) had failed.

This new Scientific Method that does not fail is the invention of Professor A. P. Smith, B. Sc., F. I. C., etc., etc., formerly Science-Master at one of the oldest colleges in the World, whose ability as a chemist and whose integrity as a man are proven by the many honorary degrees conferred on him by leading Scientific bodies.

Any woman disfigured or annoyed by the presence of superfluous hair on face, neck, arms or any other part of the body, who wishes to know the way by which Mrs. Jenkins was able to remove her blemish, so that it never returned, is invited to use the free coupon below.

When accompanied by a two-cent stamp for reply, this free coupon, properly filled out (or a letter containing your name and address, if you mention the number of this coupon), will bring you every detail by next mail, absolutely free and without charge. All correspondence is attended to by the Society's Lady Secretary and will be kept confidential.

Mrs. Patterson, Who Killed Young Husband, Tells the Story of Her Pitiful Tragedy

Mrs. Patterson has confessed that she committed the deed to free herself from the horrors of a life of white slavery.

SAYS HE SOLD HER AS ANY PROPRITEOR WOULD A PET DOG.

By DOROTHY DIX.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The other day in Denver a young and beautiful woman turned upon her husband and killed him because, she claims, after having sold her to another man as if she had been a horse or dog, he was trying to extort still more money out of her purchaser.

Never was there a story stranger or more terrible than this tragedy reveals, for it turns a searchlight upon some of the dark places of modern life and shows what folly a girl's love of luxury and fine clothes may lead her, and to what depths of infamy a man may descend to gratify his indolence and vices. For this is a story of a woman and a man parasite—a woman parasite who lived on a rich man, and the man parasite who lived upon the woman.

The story begins—where so many other stories of sirens commence—in a little village and with the village beauty. In this story the village was a little mining town in Illinois and the village beauty was a girl by the name of Gertrude Gibson.

Gertrude's father was an honest, hard-working mechanic, and she was one of ten children. They were very poor, but out of her humble environment the girl blossomed like some rare flower. Nature, who is a whimsical old dame, was in a prodigal humor when Gertrude was born, and had endowed her not only with a rarely perfect face and form, but gave her a brilliant mind and no mean musical talent.

Therefore the girl was filled with ambition. She hated the poverty in which she lived. She despised the plain people with whom she was thrown in contact. She snubbed the country bumpkins that came wooing her, and she yearned with all the ardor of her hot young heart for the life of cities, for the lights and gayety, the chiffons and the finery, the restaurants and cafes, and for the society of men who wore evening clothes and had the manners of the great world.

Educated by Millionaire.

When she was about sixteen or seventeen, chance, or fate, or the devil—call it which you please—threw into her way Emil Strouss, a millionaire clothing merchant of Chicago. He was more than double her age and grossly fat, but he could give her all the luxuries she craved, so she listened to his tales of the gay life, and, turning her back on her old home, went with him.

Mr. Strouss saw that the girl had great talents, and he educated her. He sent her to Paris, where she became a fine linguist and musician, and where she took upon her the polish of society. Then he brought her back to Chicago, and they lived in a fashionable hotel, where she was known as his wife.

Two Summers ago Gertude Gibson drove out to San Sound Park, an amusement park in Chicago, and there met Charles A. Patterson, a former football player and athlete, and then instructor of roller skating in the rink at the park. She appears to have fallen in love with him almost at first sight, and thereafter they were much together, riding every day in the electric brougham Strouss had given her.

When the season was over she told Patterson that she was going to Los Angeles and gave him $100 on which to go along with her. Soon after they got there they were married and after a brief honeymoon returned to Chicago, where she rented and furnished a handsome apartment.

Patterson did not work, but drank heavily and spent half of his days in bed. After a bit, money began to run low in the household. Patterson sold his wife's jewels and her brougham, and then, when the price of these was gone, they began to be in want. Then it was, according to Mrs. Paterson, that her husband went to Strouss and offered to sell her back and the bargain was struck between these two creatures in the form of men for a woman's honor.

Demanded Her Return.

But Patterson was a welcher, who could not even stick to his own dastardly trade. In less than a month after Strouss had gone abroad with Mrs. Patterson, he wrote threatening to kill her unless she returned at once. And when she did come back he began a course of unending abuse and villification. He lived upon her shame and then derided her for it and beat her until she was black and blue.

In the meantime Patterson had fallen sick with tuberculosis, and it is typical of this woman's contradictory character that she should have nursed him with the most wonderful tenderness and devotion. She was young and beautiful and she knew that she ran the risk of death in dreadful form by attending him, yet she hung over his sick bed like a mother over a sick child: she cooked for him, petted him, coddled him, did everything possible to smooth the hard path he was treading.

At last he went out to Denver, the consumptives' last forlorn hope for life, and she followed him. Things were no better, and his treatment of her was as cruel as ever. At the advice of a lawyer she applied for a divorce from him. In retaliation—although he knew that he had a very few months to live—he sued Strouss for alienation of his wife's affection and for taking her on a trip to Europe—that ghastly trip for which she had been sold, Mrs. Patterson asserts.

Mrs. Patterson does not pretend to be a good woman, but she has her code of honor, and part of it is the sacredness of abiding by the bargain you have made. According to his lights Strouss had dealt fairly by her husband and she wanted to save him if she could. So she begged her husband to come and see her, to talk matters over, hoping she could persuade him to withdraw his suit against Strouss and at last a rendezvous was arranged between them.

Shot in Sanitarium.

They met at a sanitarium. It was a weirdly appropriate place, this house of the dying, for this husband and wife whose souls were charnel chambers. The husband came, nothing alive in him but hate and vengeance. The wife came, all blooming beauty and health and strength.

The wife had reminded the husband of how he had ill-used her, of his selling of her as if she had been a slave, of how he had lived upon the money that was the price of her honor, and then she begged him piteously not to prosecute this suit against Strouss and so publish her shame to the world.

The husband, for reply, spat in her face and called her a vile name, and she shot him dead.

If this woman's story is true, no sadder one has ever been told. In defending herself she says:

"He dragged me to the lowest depths. He sold me because he wanted money, and after he had spent the money that had been paid for me he never rested until he got some more the some way. Three months after we were married he sold me to Emil Strouss for $1,500. He told Mr. Strouss he might take me wherever he pleased, and the $1,500 was his compensation."

FRENCH FLAG OVER AGADIR

PARIS, Oct. 6.—A group of Frenchman hoisted a French flag over the fort at Agadir, Morocco threatening grave international complications. It was announced that France had proclaimed a protectorate and that a French cruiser was en route for Agadir.

The French government immediately disavowed the action and as it is not represented at Agadir, instructed the French consul at Mogador to ask the Moroccan authorities to take measure to remove the flag and end the incident.

According to the latest advices the Frenchmen were defeating the local calif of Agadir, who, on his own responsibility, had ordered the French colors lowered, but it is expected that the Frenchmen will yield when they learn that their government has disavowed their action.

Agadir is the seaport on the Atlantic coast of Morocco, where the German gunboat Panther and the German cruiser Berlin landed men to the surprise of France, which was engaged in putting down a revolt of the natives.

MADERO TO TAKE OFFICE ON NOV. 15

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 6.—The inauguration of Francisco I. Madero into the presidency of Mexico has been set for November 15. It is said that one of Madero's first official acts will be to send a big federal army into the field against the various factional revolutionists which are menacing the government. Madero has decided to abolish the electoral college. The Governors of the various States will file the returns of the electors in their jurisdiction with the Chamber of Deputies, which will declare the results of the election.

KELIHER CASE UP AGAIN TUESDAY

Judge Colt of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to-day notified Assistant District Attorney Garland that the court would be ready next Tuesday to hear arguments on the appeal of "Big Bill" Keliher for a new trial of the charges that resulted in his conviction for aiding in wrecking the National City Bank of Cambridge. All the other cases on the list have been disposed of. United States District Attorney French will return to Boston Monday and will argue for the government against Keliher.

Skin Troubles Quickly Relieved

The powers of the new remedy Cadum, for skin diseases, can be seen after an overnight application. Before retiring, apply Cadum to a small part of the skin affected with eczema, pimples, eruptions, sores, itching, burning skin or chafings, and see how that part has improved by the next morning. This test will convince anyone that at last a reliable remedy for skin troubles has been found. Cadum is a soothing antiseptic that gives immediate relief. Those who are suffering from any skin trouble should take fresh courage, because Cadum is different from anything else. 10c and 25c., at all druggists.

CANDIDATES PLEDGE THEMSELVES TO FIGHT SLAVERY IN FOUNDRIES

A PLEDGE FOR CANDIDATES

Do you believe that women should work in Massachusetts foundries? If you do not, cut out this pledge, hand it to the next candidate who asks you for his vote, or to any candidate whom you know; and ask him to fill it out and mail it to the AMERICAN.

WILL YOU PROMISE, IF ELECTED, TO WORK AND VOTE FOR A LAW PROHIBITING THE EMPLOYMENT OF WOMEN AND GIRLS IN CORE ROOMS AND FOUNDRIES, AND A LAW TO CREATE A DEPARTMENT OF LABOR FOR THE ENFORCEMENT OF ALL LABOR LAWS?

I promise to vote: Yes..... No.....

Name .....

Address .....

Candidate for.....

The great campaign inaugurated by the Sunday AMERICAN in the interest of the women foundry-slaves employed at the Blake-Knowles pump works in East Cambridge is now in full swing, and pledges to vote for a law to prohibit the continuance of the brutal custom arrive by every mail.

John Devlin of No. 30 Elm street, North Attleboro, a candidate for the Legislature, was the first to send in a pledge that he will, if elected, vote for a law to prohibit the employment of women and girls in corerooms and foundries, and a measure to create a Labor Department for the proper enforcement of all labor laws.

Henry Gould Hickborn of No. 100 Florence avenue, Revere, a candidate for the State Senate, is the second on the roll of honor, his pledge in the affirmative being received within an hour after that of the North Attleboro candidate. In both instances the promise was made on the "Pledge for Candidates" slip printed in the AMERICAN, as drafted at the overflow meeting in Faneuil Hall last Saturday night.

Whole State is Stirred.

That the list now started will soon be swelled to big proportions is now regarded as a foregone conclusion. Seldom have the people of Massachusetts been move stirred.

Churches, women's clubs, citizen's associations, social clubs, the big trade unions, and even the rules-for-women societies have taken up the fight being made to save the women foundry-slaves.

The story of the hardships of the women coremakers of Cambridge, as published by the Sunday AMERICAN exclusively, makes the question of doing away with this form of industrial slavery a burning issue of the day.

The fearless attitude of the Sunday AMERICAN in laying bare this practice is the subject of favorable comment on every hand. Letters and resolutions praising the paper in its humane stand against woman slavery in the blistering foundries have been received from a number of citizens and from several influential organizations.

The latest, in which the AMERICAN is singled out for praise, is contained in resolutions passed by the Lowell Moulders' Union and forwarded to the AMERICAN for publication.

Accompanying these resolutions was a letter on the official stationery of the union, signed by its secretary, the full text of which follows:

Commendation From Union.

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir:—Enclosed find resolutions adopted at a meeting of our union, held Oct. 2, 1911. I also have been instructed to commend you for your editorials on the employment of women and girls in corerooms and foundries.

Wishing you and your newspaper success in the future, I am

Very respectfully yours,
CHARLES P. ANDERSON,
Secretary L. M. U., Local No. 88.

The Resolutions.

The resolutions follow:

Whereas, the employment of women and girls in foundries is brutally unAmerican, and

Whereas, the factory-inspecting department of our State Police apparently know nothing about the employment of women and girls in the foundries of the Commonwealth until the horrible practice was exposed by the press of the city of Boston, therefore be it

Resolved, that every candidate for public office at the coming State election, in the Lowell Districts, be requested to give a specific answer to the following question:

Will you promise, if elected, to work and vote for a law prohibiting the employment of women and girls in corerooms and foundries, and a law to create a Department of Labor for the enforcement of all labor laws?

Resolved further, that we, the members of the International Moulders' Union, Local No. 88, of Lowell, Mass., in meeting assembled, commend the Sunday AMERICAN on the stand it has taken in exposing to the citizens of Massachusetts the employment of women and girls in foundries and corerooms, and be it further

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Sunday AMERICAN, and a copy submitted to the Trades and Labor Council of Lowell, Mass., requesting similar action.

Will Question All Candidates.

The decision of the Lowell moulders to question all candidates for public office at the coming State election, and the request of the Lowell Trades and Labor Council to take like action, is conceded to mean the defeat of any man who refuses to give the desired pledge. Labor is so strong in that city that an evasive or unsatisfactory reply by any candidate is equivalent to political suicide.

With a similar pressure being brought to bear upon other candidates in still other cities by the right-thinking men and women in all walks of life, success is now assured in this, the greatest fight for humanity ever undertaken by any newspaper the country over.

STRIKE BATTLE, 4 ARE KILLED

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 6.—Four strikebreakers are reported killed when a special train carrying seventeen Southern Pacific section men was ambushed at Gretna, five miles from here.

The strikers are reported to have fired a number of shots into the train, and to have stopped it.

The strike-breakers were in charge of United States Deputy Marshal Johns.

Louis Lariviere, who said he lives at No. 603 Bacola avenue, Brooklyn, was shot through the abdomen and will likely die. Marshal Johns was shot through the right hand. Thirty shots were exchanged.

A sheriff's posse was formed and the parish of Gretna is being scoured for the assailants.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Sweeping injunctions by the Federal courts to-day are in effect against strikers of the Federation of Employes in Illinois, Kentucky, Mississippi and Louisiana.

On these injunctions the railroads rely to prevent further recurrence of the violence that in the last twenty-four hours has resulted in the death of four men, the fatal injury of a number of others and the destruction of considerable property.

New Cheviot and Mixture Coats Exceptional 6.98 Offer

Here is a genuine $10.00 value (judging from our own knowledge and from what other stores are asking for this same grade of garment).

We picture a coat that can be had in ALL-WOOL MIXTURES AND FINE CHEVIOTS, in a late Fall style. Note the swagger effect and the rich inlaid velvet lapels and collar, usually found only in the higher-priced coats. Other features that stamp this garment as an exceptional value are the fashionable pointed effect of the collar, with tassel, and three handsome metal buttons used as fastening. Well made, warm, stylish and serviceable, this coat is a splendid investment for Winter wear, for both misses and small women. For Saturday only 6.98

Stomach Sufferers Squander Millions

In Search of Relief.

The world is full of disordered stomachs and 95 per cent. of the money spent upon physicians and drugs goes in an attempt to cure the stomach.

People are made to believe that in order to gain health they must doctor their stomachs and use cathartics. So the doctor gets his fee for the stomach treatment and the druggist for the physic, until the savings of a lifetime are exhausted and yet no cure.

Let's be reasonable.

The sick stomach is in every case the result of over-eating, hurried mastication and improper choice of foods. The nervous lining all the way down the food tract loses its sensitiveness, and when food is forced down the muscles fail to respond. They do not churn the food as they should. The glands no longer give out gastric juice to dissolve the food and render it capable of assimilation. The mass has become a dyspeptic.

There is one sure way and only one to bring positive relief. Put into that stomach of yours the very elements that it lacks to get that food into liquid form. It takes pepsin, diastase, golden seal and other ferments to accomplish this. The healthy stomach contains these elements. The dyspeptic stomach lacks part or all of them. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet is made up of just what the dyspeptic stomach lacks—Nature's digestives.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not a medicine, not a drug, not a catharetic. They do not cure anybody of anything but Dyspepsia and Indigestion, and such ailments as arise from poorly digested food.

While they digest the food the stomach recuperates. The mucous membrane is coming out of its rest, the gastric juice is coming to the surface, muscles are regaining their power. Every atom of the body takes on new life, the skin glows, and the eyes are no longer dinged with yellow. You live.

Ask doctor and why drug yourself? Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will take care of your food while he cures you.

A box at your druggist's, 50 cents. Or, if you prefer a free trial package before buying, send your name and address to-day. F. A. Stuart Co., Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

WOMEN CLEAN UP THE SOUTH END

Brush and Broom Wielded to Make It a Model Section.

By GERTRUDE L. MARVIN.

Clean up! The brushes and brooms are at work in the South End!

The South End women under the leadership of Mrs. Ellen A. Stone, have begun a war against dirt and dust.

These energetic women, tired of the way their lords and masters keep house out in the streets and alleys, banded together as the South End Woman's Club to take shovels and rake in their own hands and clean up their part of the city, even though they are not considered capable of voting on laws about keeping the city clean.

There are only a group of a dozen women responsible for every alley in the South End. These women made a house to house canvass of every dwelling on those alleys, asking for 50 cents from each family, to be used for a grand housecleaning of all out doors.

With the money they hired men to shovel out the filth and rubbish which had been collecting for years. But they didn't let it go at that.

You should hear Mrs. Stone tell about it to appreciate the enthusiasm they put into the work. Her gentle blue eyes flashed as she told of the conditions they found:

Terrible Condition in Streets.

"It was terrible," she said. "We found dead cats and old rotting mattresses that had been lying soaking in the rain for months, and garbage and decaying food that the lodgers threw out of their windows, or took into the alleys as they passing.

"We hired men to do the heaviest work but we did not leave it to them. We took shovels and hoes and rakes and brooms and went right out with them, because we did not have money enough to pay them for wasting any time, and we wanted them to tend to business and to do it right.

"The cleaning up was a great improvement for the sake of the public health as well as for appearances, but it had other advantages too. Our house to house canvass, trying to get everyone to join and help, gave us a greater spirit of neighborliness than we have had around here for years. I was very glad indeed to have an opportunity of meeting so many of my neighbors.

South End Has Changed.

"Somehow, even giving so small a sum as ten cents seemed to give each family a more direct and personal interest in keeping things clean after the first excitement was over."

Mrs. Stone had owned her home at No. 7 Concord square for twenty years. It was only a few years ago that surveys on the square used to club together to hire a special man to take care of the grass plot in the middle of the street and the alleys around in the back.

"But the South End has changed so rapidly," Mrs. Stone continued, "that there has been no general effort by the community for some time until the South End Improvement Association was started a couple of years ago, and our Woman's Club, which is an offshoot of the first.

"We met twice a month at the South End House Room Registry on West Brookline street. Our meeting is purely social, and we do have mighty good times. At the other meeting we have had some very interesting speakers, through the interest of Mrs. Robert A. Woods, who was our first president. The chief of police came up and told us just what the police force could do for us and what our relation to them was. The judge from the Juvenile Court came up and told us what we could do for the children of the neighborhood. And we have had other interesting speakers.

PUTS CUPID ON CITY PAYROLL

It's up to anyone, man or woman, who is loveable but lonely to raise the price of a ticket to Des Moines.

Des Moines is in the State of Iowa. It is known more or less to fame as the capital of that State. But it's pet name now is Cupid's City and under that appellation it bids fair to be known all over the world.

The answer is that Des Moines is the only city in the wide, wide world to have a "Municipal Clearing House For Lonely Souls." In other words it has a city matrimonial bureau with a salaried cupid and a staff.

Edward C. Lytton, the Mayor's secretary, is the municipal Cupid. He hasn't any wings visible, but some what more earnestly than the little god of love is represented by painters and sculptors and doesn't go about with a bow and arrow seeking to shoot up his victims, but lies right on the job, even without a make-up.

Cute Room for Cupid.

To aid the Municipal Cupid there is an advisory board, consisting of Mayor James Hanna, Dr. H. L. Saylor, the city physician and City Clerk Horace Busenv.

Cupid Lytton has a cute little office in City Hall. The walls are done in a passionate pink color scheme groundwork with hearts and true lovers' knots in lighter. A statuette of Cupid occupies the place of honor on Mr. Lytton's desk and flowers are plentiful. A phonograph plays nothing but the wedding march from "Lohengrin."

Mr. Lytton, as Cupid, has arranged a civil service list for young people who want to qualify in the matrimonial class.

Classified by Ages.

Women wishing husbands will be requested by Mr. Lytton to send him their names, addresses and photographs. He will keep a classified waiting list from which to make recommendations to wife-seeking applicants.

It has been decided to divide the waiting list into three classes. Class A will contain the names of women between eighteen and twenty-five, Class B from twenty-five to thirty-five, and Class C from thirty-five upwards.

Men wishing wives will be required to designate the class within which their own age falls.

Mayor Hanna has agreed to aid Cupid by marrying free of charge all couples matched through the aid of the municipal bureau.

CRANE HELPS BOY TO TECH

One of Senator W. Murray Crane's secrets has become known. Despite the fact he wished nothing said about the gift it has just been revealed in Marlboro that it is through a check for $225 he gave that Thomas A. Coyne of No. 100 Pleasant street, that city, is enrolled in the Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

Senator Crane became interested in the young man through his efforts to enter the naval academy in Annapolis. Coyne was appointed by the then Congressman John J. Mitchell, and although he passed the examination, he was rejected owing to a defect in eyesight. Another examination was ordered, but Coyne was not allowed sufficient time in which to correct the trouble in his vision.

In his difficulty the young man went to Washington to see Senator Crane. The senator advised Coyne to enter the Worcester institution and then surprised him a few days later by mailing him a check for his tuition.

SUNDAY'S AMERICAN

DO YOUR OWN MIXING.

Rough on Rats, the unbeatable exterminator, being all (95%) poison, one 25c. box will spread or make 100 or more little cakes that would kill 1000 or more rats and mice, and millions of roaches, ants and bedbugs. Not poisonous to handle, only so when eaten.

Don't mix it too strong; use the cakes used preeminately largely. Mix it only about 1 part to 15 or 20 of food used for Rats and one to 40 or 50 for Mice, and change the kind of food used occasionally. But mix it thoroughly. Equally effective for all obnoxious animals, "vermints," etc. Sold all around the world. Don't die in the house. 15c., 25c., 75c. boxes. E. S. Wells, Jersey City, N. J.

CUNNING OF RATS.

Rats are too cunning to be caught, more than one or two in the same trap, too cute for the stereotyped ready-for-use things. You may get a few one time, with phosphorous pastes, but never again. They instinctively avoid the familiar forms of ready-prepared for use, catch-penny devices. Rough on Rats being a dry, odorless, tasteless powder, and all (95%) poison, with no cheap, inert admixture, can be mixed each time you use it with a different food, thus disguising it, in many ways completely outwitting them. Rats are smart, but Rough on Rats beats them. 15c., 25c., 75c., at Druggists.

VICTIM OF AUTO IS FOUND DEAD

NORTH BEVERLY, Oct. 6.—Bruised and battered, Joseph Gillis of No. 9 Fillmore street was found dead near the lockhouse here early to-day. It was evident that the man had been struck by a passing automobile. The police believe that Gillis, struck by an automobile which immediately sped away, lay on the ground unconscious throughout the night.

At 1 o'clock an automobile stopped at the car barn of the Bay State Railway in Wenham and the driver informed Foreman Barrows that he passed the unconscious form of a man on the road at North Beverly.

BIG PRIZES IN FAIRMOUNT RACE

By J. C. KERRIGAN.

To-morrow will see the running of the last big road race in the East before the bedding of the Vanderbilt and the Grand Prize races Thanksgiving week. This race, which will be held at Fairmount park, Philadelphia, will be under the auspices of the Quaker City Motor club. The distance will be twenty-five laps around a course of 8.10 miles, and some record work should be done, as seventeen of the best drivers in the country have been entered.

The race will be run in Class C, division 3-C, 4-C, 5-C and 6-C, and the winner of each division will get $1,000, while the grand prize for the fastest time will be $2,500 in addition to the class prize.

Fred J. Wagner will act as starter, and the cars will line up under his official supervision. Ralph De Palma will drive his Mercer, taking the place of the Mercer which came to grief Wednesday.

TAFT FROWNS ON DRUNKENNESS AND DISMISSES CADETS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Apparently intoxication is coming to be regarded as a much more serious offence among officers of both Army and Navy. It was announced at the War Department that President Taft had confirmed the sentence of dismissal in the case of four of the West Point cadets recently convicted of intoxication, and had commuted the sentences of four others to confinement in barracks and gymnasium until May 31 next, the culprits meanwhile to serve punishments hours.

The cadets dismissed are Ralph I. Sasse of Delaware, third class; John D. Christian of Virginia, fourth class; Patnall D. Simkins of Georgia, third class, and Elliott H. Freeland of South Carolina, third class.

GIANT LINERS IN BOSTON SERVICE

Boston is to have two giant liners added to her trans-Atlantic service according to announcements to-day of the White Star line and the Cunard line for the Summer season of 1912.

Early in the Spring the White Star line will put on the liner Majestic to add to its fine fleet of Boston-Liverpool vessels. At about the same time the Cunard line will put on the Laconia, a sister ship of the Franconia, and a brand new vessel built specially for the Boston service.

Both vessels will be additions to the Boston service, for none of the present vessels will be taken off. The 1912 fleet of the White Star line for the Liverpool service will consist of the Cymric, Arabic, Laurentic and the Majestic, and the Romanic, Canopic and Cretic will be used in the Mediterranean service.

The Majestic will be the fastest liner sailing from this port. She is a 10,000-ton, twenty-knot vessel. She will make the passage from Liverpool to Boston in less than seven days. She is now in the New York service and left Southampton a week ago yesterday and arrived in New York last Wednesday night. She carries 278 saloon, 250 second and 1,000 steerage passengers, and is one of the most magnificently furnished vessels in the Atlantic service.

RECTOR'S BLOOD SAVES WOMAN

NASHUA, N. H., Oct. 6.—Rev. William Porter Niles, son of Bishop Niles of New Hampshire, and rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, has added new laurels to his record as a militant clergyman. To-day he is recovering from a midnight transfusion of a large quantity of his blood to the veins of Mrs. Ben Emery Burns, a parishioner, which saved her life when the doctors had given her but a few hours longer to live.

The rector underwent the ordeal without the administration of anesthetics. Called on the telephone and informed that Mrs. Burns, wife of a Nashua attorney whose father was the late General Charles H. Burns, counsel for the Boston & Maine in this section, was dying, Rev. Mr. Niles asked the doctors if there was nothing that could be done. He was informed that their only hope lay in a successful transfusion of blood, but that it would have to be immediate, and that no subject was available.

"Will I do?" inquired Rev. Mr. Niles.

"Certainly," replied the doctor, "if you are willing."

"Is it likely to kill me?" the clergyman asked.

"No, indeed," came the answer.

Rev. Mr. Niles paused long enough to explain the situation to Mrs. Niles, feeling that in such a matter it was only right to consult her. Mrs. Niles expressed approval without hesitation, so the clergyman told the doctors to go ahead and make all preparations and that he would hurry to the Burns home on Concord street.

Saved Woman From Death.

Mrs. Burns was suffering from hemorrhages superinduced by typhoid fever. Local physicians say it is the first time where transfusion of blood was resorted to in a case of this nature in the State. The woman's husband, who had only recently recovered from a grilled illness, was too weak to offer any of his own blood.

Dr. James T. Greeley, who was assisted in performing the operation by Dr. Frank E. Kittredge and Dr. A. S. Wallace, said to-day, regarding it:

"We placed Mr. Niles on one table and Mrs. Burns on another table at its side. We opened the left wrist of the donor and exposed the main artery. We opened the left arm of the patient and exposed a large vein. Then, making incisions, we joined the two.

"The action of the strong heart of the donor forced the fresh blood into the veins of the dying woman. Soon we could detect her pulse, which became slower as its beats became more marked. Color came to her countenance and she showed other signs of returning life.

"Fighting Rector."

"In the meanwhile Mr. Niles' pulse grew rapid and weak. He showed other symptoms of diminishing vitality, and when we separated them and closed the incisions he had to be helped to bed. It was three days before he got his strength back. As an example of self-sacrifice and fortitude, made with promptness and no hesitation, I consider the act of Mr. Niles without parallel in the medical annals of the State."

Rev. Mr. Niles is one of the best-known Episcopalian clergymen in the State. His work for civic welfare has made him as prominent among all classes of citizens as his labors for the church have made him beloved by all members of his faith.

He is a man of strong convictions and aggressive in his interest of causes which he believes to be right and just.

Soda crackers are extremely sensitive to moisture.

Before the advent of Uneeda Biscuit the only persons who ever tasted fresh, crisp soda crackers were the people in the bakeries.

Imagine their trip from bakery to your table; exposed to air and moisture—kept in grocers' boxes and finally in a paper bag on the shelf in your pantry. Could they be the same as they were the day they were baked?

Now that we have Uneeda Biscuit—we have perfectly baked soda crackers—perfectly kept.

No moisture can reach them—no contaminating influences can affect their flavor—their goodness is imprisoned only to be liberated by you for you when you open the package.

Always in the moisture proof package. Never sold in bulk. 5 cents a package.

Compare

THE more you compare the various men's stores in Boston, the better you'll like this one.

We've built this business up more rapidly than any similar accomplishment in the history of this city. To find the reason, compare our clothes and our prices with those of other stores—or ask any man who has bought here. "More for your money" is the answer whichever way you arrive at it.

When you consider the tremendous quantities of merchandise we buy, the big discounts we get for spot cash, and the low rent we pay, you'll see how we can give better values. Comparison will show—and a test will prove—that we do.

GLIDDEN ESTATE IN LITIGATION

The $140,000 estate left by Charles W. Glidden, who died in Boston seven years ago, is involved in a bill in equity filed in Boston by Marry Glidden Dartnell of Damariscotta, Me., against seven respondents of Boston, Cambridge and Maine. The respondents are Frank W. Coburn, John B. Williams, George W. Williams, Augustus G. Perkins, all of Boston; Edward O. Glidden of Cambridge and Ella C. Glidden, Sunie F. Glidden of Newcastel, Me.

Mrs. Dartnell asks for an accounting of the property left by Charles W. Glidden. She asks that Frank W. Coburn and Ella C. Glidden, executors of the estate of Alonzo W. Glidden who died July 5, 1911, be required to account for all property which came into their possession which belonged to the estate of Charles W. Glidden.

In her bill Mrs. Dartnell says that Coburn has had the principal management of all the property owned by Charles W. Glidden, and thta he has failed to account properly to beneficiaries of the estate. She declares that Perkins, who is the trustee under the will of Alonzo Glidden, has failed to render an accounting or inventory to the court concerning his trusteeship. Mrs. Dartnell further says that Alonzo Glidden improperly apppointed Coburn manager or real estate covered by the trust, and that Coburn has deducted from the assets of the estate large amounts of money for his services.

"SOCIAL CODE" FOR ANNAPOLIS CADETS

ANNAPOLIS, Oct. 6.—The so-called "Social Code" at the United States Naval Academy has at last been instituted among the brigade of midshipmen. Hereafter midshipmen of the lowest, or fourth class, will not be allowed in the city of Annapolis more than eight times a year.

The idea is to break up the acquaintanceships that the midshipmen have made in civil life and as one of the officers expressed it, "make gentlemen" or the future officers. It was said that the cause of the order was to "keep the middies out of trouble, to make them forget undesirable friends and to thereby raise the social standing of the Navy."

BROOKLINE ELKS FATHER FISH YARN

Here is a brand new fishing story vouched for by the Brookline lodge of Elks. The teller is Charles Burns of the A. F. Rich Company of T wharf, a member of the Brookline Lodge. He was fishing recently at South Point, Nantucket, casting offshore for big fish, when one of the hooks caught his watch chain and off went watch, chain and an Elks charm into the sea. To-day he received the watch, chain and charm in a package with a card from a member of the Lowell Lodge, who explained that while fishing at South Point he hauled in the gold watch, chain and charm.

BOY SCOUTS WILL HUNT FOR POACHERS

Twenty-four boy scouts living in Belmont will patrol the woods in that town on Columbus Day to watch for poachers hunting rabbits and partridges. They are acting on request of the Belmont Field and Forest Club, and will be in charge of Scout Masters Stanley G. Cady and Hugo B. Seikel. They will patrol in groups and destroy snares they come across and trail poachers until a game warden can be notified.

ONE CIVIL SERVICE TEST IS ABANDONED

The United States Civil Service Commission to-day notified Secretary Stebbins to cancel the first and third-grade examinations announced for February 3, 1912, to establish registers for all government service in Boston and vicinity except the postal branch. The commission has decided there are now enough eligibles on the register to meet all requirements. Applications will be issued for the next examination on October 1, 1912.

CALUMET & HECLA MERGER DROPPED?

The advance in the stock of Calumet & Hecla and its subsidiary copper companies in the Boston market to-day gave rise to a persistent rumor that the merger of the properties would be abandoned. The Boston News Bureau says it is reported that announcement to this effect is to be made within a few days.

L STREET BATHERS PRAISE TRUSTEES

Regular patrons of the L street baths at South Boston have presented to Mayor Fitzgerald a petition signed by 500 of their number praising the city bath trustees for the interest they showed in the welfare of the bathers the past season.

BRANDEIS AIDS TOBACCO FIGHT

Louis D. Brandeis of Boston has entered in a new fight against big corporations to insure the protection of independent dealers and the consumers. He will appear before judges of the United States Circuit Court in New York to-day to contest any part of the disintegration plan of the American Tobacco Company that does not insure conditions of real competition in the tobacco industry, including growing, manufacturing and retailing.

Attorney Brandeis, who was counsel for Louis D. Glavis in the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy and who fought the increase in freight rates, will represent the Cigar Manufacturers' Association of America and the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association of America, comprising the principal independent tobacco interests of the country. With Mr. Brandeis will be associated Felix F. Levy, a New York attorney.

The importance which Mr. Brandeis attaches to the re-organization plan proposed by the Tobacco Trust, the independents say, is not alone because of the inadequacy of the separation into three companies of the property and business of the American Tobacco Company, although that involves the future of thousands of small manufacturers and dealers, but because if the plan were permitted to go through, a precedent will be established for the treatment of other great combinations of capital. It is pointed out that this is also the view taken by the bankers and other factors in the financing and control of big industrial organizations.

Movements are on foot among other organizations of planters, manufacturers, merchants and retailers to get together under the leadership of Mr. Brandeis, some of which are expected to culminate to-day. Antagonists of the proposed plan point out that the plan itself will not effect a real disintegration and a return to fair competitive conditions, for if it would the independents would have no fear of the wrath of the trust.

Officials of the American Tobacco Company expressed surprise at the report that the plan was not satisfactory and seemed satisfied that it had the approval of Attorney-General Wickersham.

A TONIC FOR THE STOMACH

Many People Who Think They Are Dyspeptics Need Only to Have Their Digestive Apparatus Toned Up

Much of the dieting and treatment for stomach trouble is worse than the disease and often aggravates it.

Tone up the stomach to do its part rather than cut down the diet to suit a weak stomach. Reduced nourishment means reduced strength for the entire system including the stomach. To restore the weak stomach to strength and health, it must be supplied with plenty of pure, red blood, for every act of digestion needs healthy blood.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People meet all the requirements of a good tonic for the stomach because they are an unequalled blood-builder. The pure, rich blood which they make stimulates and increases the flow of the digestive fluids, removes any irritability of the stomach, soothes and strengthens the nerves, and supplies the stomach with the needed strength.

Mr. Howard S. Urban, a blacksmith, of Wrightsville, York Co., Pa., who was cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, says:

"Sometime ago I began to be troubled with indigestion and my stomach became so weak that I frequently had to vomit after eating. Food felt like a dead weight in my stomach and would ferment, causing gas to form. I was troubled with dizziness and when I straightened up suddenly after bending over, I would see black specks before my eyes.

"I was under a doctor's care more or less of the time for six months but he failed to cure me. I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in a book and concluded to try them. I used several boxes of the pills, as they helped me from the first, and was completely cured."

For a more complete explanation of the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in stomach troubles, send today for a free copy of our booklet, "What to Eat and How to Eat."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should also be used in anæmia, rheumatism, nervousness and sciatica because of their power to make rich, new blood.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are for sale by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

MADELINE RUSSE DEFENDS 'GET-RICH-QUICK' MAN

In Her First Public Statement She Praises Broker Flagg.

She Tells of Occurrences in the Syndicate of Promoters.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—In her first public statement Miss Madeline Russe, confidential secretary to Jared Flagg, the ralded get-rich-quick promoter, told of her flight from the city after the descent on her employer's offices, of her return, and of her appearance before United States District Attorney Wise.

She defended the accused promoter as a "nice man" who had always been good to her and denied that she had ever accused him of any bogus transactions. To make her denial more emphatic she wrote this statement on a sip of paper:

"I deny ever having said to anyone that Mr. Flagg's transactions were bogus, I also deny that I ever said that Mr. Flagg was a reckless speculator, and that money was coming in so fast that he didn't care whether he made or lost it."

Reports of her beauty have not been exaggerated. Miss Russe has wonderful brown hair and large eyes that sparkle and twinkle merrily when she is pleased, but that shoot out in angry flashes when she is not. Once during the interview she became angry. That was when the name of Hazel Murray, her alleged rival for Flagg's affections, was mentioned. She twisted her whole face into a frown. Her expressive eyelashes drooped and her eyes flashed with anger.

"Hazel Murray! Please don't mention that woman to me!" she exclaimed. "The idea of associating me with that person. Please don't let's talk about her any more."

Apparently she succeeded in dismissing her from her mind, for the frown vanished and the next moment she was laughing and chatting gaily about how she had succeeded in eluding the newspaper reporters who had tried to dog her trail day and night since the raid.

Miss Madeline Russe, in her first public statement, declares that she fled to Nova Scotia after the raid on the New York promoter's office because she had done no wrong and did not want to be locked up. She admitted that she had seen United States District Attorney Wise, but said that she did not know whether she would be called as a witness by the defence or the prosecution, or by either.

BORDEN REGIME BEGINS TO-DAY

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 6.—Following the last meeting of the Laurier government, the ministers' resignations were tendered to Earl Grey to-day and Mr. Borden was invited to form a government. It is almost certain that W. T. White, general manager of the National Trust Company of Toronto, will be the new finance minister. He was one of the eighteen Toronto Liberals who signed a protest against the reciprocity agreement and is being taken into the Conservative government as the representative of the dissatisfied Liberals who voted against the agreement.

Among those who are practically certain to have portfolios are Premier Hazen of New Brunswick; A. S. Goodeve, M. P., of British Columbia; Senator Lougheed of Alberta; Dr. Roche, M. P., of Marquette, Man.; Hulbert Rogers, Manitoba's minister of public works; Frank Cochrane, minister of mines for Ontario; Andrew Broder, M. P., of Dundas, Ont.; George E. Foster, ex-finance minister; Judge Doherty of St. Anne's Montreal; T. Chase Casgrin, and F. D. Monk of Montreal.

INDIGESTION, DYSPEPSIA, SOURNESS, GAS AND STOMACH-HEADACHE GO.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch Gas and Eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of Dizziness, Heartburn, Fullness, Nausea, Bad taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is Indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or Indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases, then you will understand why Dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or Indigestion in five minutes. Diapepsin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite, but what will please you most is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for Biliousness or Constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever try a little for Indigestion or Gastritis or any other Stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of Stomach Trouble and Indigestion.

CARNIVAL TIPS TO BOATMEN

a wide lake and if there were a breeze it would be rough for canoes and there would be danger of accident. Besides, the presence of so many motor boats in the basin will cause a heavy wash which would swamp a canoe unless it were most skillfully handled.

Get in Line Early.

Let the carnival manager know as soon as possible if you are coming in so that he can give you a good position in the line and make every arrangement for your protection.

Don't delay in sending in your entry. It's a big job to arrange the entries in classes and have the proper running schedule made out so that the half million people, whom it is estimated will see the carnival, can have a smooth-running, gorgeous spectacle without any unnecessary delays in starting. The way for the motor boat enthusiast to aid himself, as well as the AMERICAN, is to GET BOAT ENTRIES IN AT ONCE—TO-DAY.

Prizes will be awarded to the most attractive appearing motor boats in the following classes:

Cabin boats, 20 to 35 feet in length.
Open boats, 20 to 35 feet in length.
Open boats, under 20 feet.
Cabin boats, under 20 feet.
Power dories.
Speed boats, any size.

Special prizes will be awarded as follows:

Most grotesquely decorated motor boat.
Best illuminated boat.
Best decorated boat.
Best decorated naval launch or power boat.
Best decorated boat, 35 feet or over.
Boat containing most effectively costumed occupants.

Special prize to boat club which has largest number of entries. Fifteen boats from each club must enter to win this prize and the club must be a recognized organized association with a house.

There is no entrance fee required. Owners can enter their motor boats in the parade and competition for prizes absolutely free of charge.

All wishing to enter their boats in any of the classes will write to Carnival Manager, Boston AMERICAN.

Please give full name and address and class in which your boat is qualified to enter.

DOROTHY DRAPER, WHO IS TO WED IN HOPEDALE

MISS DOROTHY DRAPER

MISS DRAPER TO WED ON NOV. 21

Several hundred invitations to guests have been sent to many different towns and cities in New England and elsewhere in the United States for the marriage at the "Ledges," the Draper home in Hopedale, of Miss Dorothy Draper, daughter of ex-Governor and Mrs. E. S. Draper, and Thomas B. Gannett, Jr., of Cambridge, on November 21.

CIGAR AND BEER EXPENSE $30 000

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 6.—"I want to win the nomination, but I don't want to buy it," was the declaration of United States Senator Stephenson of Wisconsin, when told that the item for beer and cigars had reached a total of $30,000, according to E. A. Edmonds, the Senator's campaign manager. In testifying before the United States Senate Committee which is investigating the charges that bribery and corruption figured in Stephenson's election, he told of the primaries of 1908 and insisted that the expense bill was not over the $107,793 reported to the State.

In reply to his complaint of the big bills, Senator Stephenson was told that the three other Republican candidates for the primary nomination—former Congressman Samuel A. Cook, who spent $42,200; former State Senator William H. Hatton, who spent $30,002, and Francis E. McGovern, now Governor of Wisconsin, who spent $11,106—were making a hard fight. Their expenses finally aggregated $83,268, and this, with Senator Stephenson's expenses, made a total for the Republican Senatorial campaign that year $191,061.

It was testified by Edmonds that the Senator usually issued checks for more money when told of the activities of his opponents. "He sometimes was provoked that so much money was being spent and after prefacing his remarks with his own characteristic language, he would say, 'I want to win the nomination, but I don't want to buy it.' Then he would supply whatever funds were needed," testified Edmonds.

The charges, as investigated by the Wisconsin Legislature and presented to the United States Senate, were read in detail to Edmonds. He admitted that many sums named in the charges were paid, but he denied the truth of the phrase "used corruptly and in violation of the law" as included in each charge.

NEGRO CHAUFFEUR LYNCHED IN GEORGIA

MACON, Ga., Oct. 6.—A dispatch from Dublin, Ga., says a negro employed as a chauffeur by a Dodge county woman was lynched by a masked mob at Baldwin's bridge for an attempted assault on the woman whose automobile he operated. The negro was captured in the woods after several hours' chase.

GERMAN REPLY TO MR. EDISON

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—Director Bergmann of the Bergmann Electric Works, who was Thomas A. Edison's host during the recent stay of the inventor here, has sent to the Vossische Zeitung a reply to the comments of his old Menlo Park chief on Germany. Bergmann says:

"One had better not take too tragically any supposed or real remarks by Edison, because he is notorious for forming hasty and superficial judgments on subjects about which he knows nothing. Americans would attribute far less importance than Germans appear to do to any comments Edison might make on subjects aside from his own line of work.

"Nevertheless, it is impossible that Edison should have said all that was printed. Edison said to me that he had seen more factory chimneys in Chemnitz than in all France, and I told him he had seen ten times more chimneys in Rhineland and Westphalia.

"Edison repeatly spoke to me and others in a complimentary way about our industrial development. It is quite impossible that he could say German financiers themselves admitted to him that German business methods suffered under partnership with money-grubbing aristocrats. Edison met only three men here with whom he could have discussed such matters. They were Director Rathenau of the General Electric Company, Director Von Siemens and myself. I did not make and it is impossible that either of the others made such a statement to him."

"RIKER'S SPECIAL PLEASE"

Anniversary Sale of Riker's Special Chocolates

A 40c MIXTURE AT 29c LB.

Last year we undertook to sell 4 tons of Riker's Special Saturday Candy in one day. When the sale was over we found we had sold over 5½ tons.

Saturday, Oct. 7th, will be the first year's Anniversary of that sale—and to observe it we aim to sell 9 tons on that day.

CAN WE DO IT? We feel absolutely certain we can—because the merits of this candy are now much better known.

It is not a 29c candy, but a 40c candy which we sell on Saturdays Only at 29c.

There are over thirty different kinds of chocolates in the box, made from pure sugar, excellent flavorings, and the coating is made from a blend of chocolate which has no equal. The cream centers are deliciously satisfying, each piece being perfect of its kind. Some chocolates are nothing but sweet, but here you will find, not only that you can recognize the flavoring of the center, but that the taste of the chocolate jacket is apparent, enough of bitter chocolate is used so that the characteristic taste of the chocolate bean remains.

Our average sale per week is between ten and twelve thousand pounds, which means that that many people prefer this candy.

Many of our customers frankly say they prefer it to higher priced candies, not on account of the price, but its quality.

Our margin of profit barely covers the cost of doing business, but we can conceive of no better advertising than the fact that twelve thousand people come to our candy departments once a week to purchase this package of candy.

You will find it on every counter in our stores, and when our salesmen show it to you, you are being shown the most delicious and satisfying candy at twenty-nine cents that it is possible to make.

He also left $10,000 to his son, Fred Beckett Collins, $3,000 to his sister, Helen Maria Collins, and the residue to his wife, Fannie Judson Collins.

IRISH ACTORS IN SHAW PLAY

When it comes to showing the local color of the American Western country neither George Bernard Shaw nor the Irish Players distinguish themselves particularly, but they were both brilliant enough in other directions to interest a big audience at the Plymouth last evening in "The Showing Up of Blanco Posnet." There were many apparent reasons why the hand of a censor might have shielded us from Shaw's frank use of the English language, providing we had a regular censor on the job, for the blackguard Posnet was brutally blunt and direct in his expression of disbelief in the goodness of God and in his accusation of immorality against Feemy Evans, one of the bird young women of the play.

Of course Shaw wrote brilliantly and with fine stinging sarcasm. He mocked and railed at us for our hypocrisy, which you could easily believe after seeing "The Showing Up of Blanco Posnet" was the dominant trait in every character. Shaw has little respect for the conventions of the world, and in this play he assigned a beastly horse thief to the task of railing at human weakness and religion. And there was much vigor in Shaw's exceedingly lively pen. Believe Shaw and the world and its inhabitants are built for [illegible].

But if Shaw's wit was brilliant, so too was the acting of the players who presented his spicy characters. Fred O'Donovan was a gorgeous Posnet, who found nothing good in the world and liked to talk about it. His sermon to the company after a narrow escape from hanging was [illegible] with delicate sarcasm. Arthur Sinclair was outlandish as Elder Daniels, a man who trafficked in both whiskey and religion and who gloried in each occupation. Sara Allgood was straight from the shoulder as Feemy Evans, happy in her manifold vices, which were carefully noted and explained by Posnet to everyone's horror.

There is no shirking among the Irish Players. Besides "The Showing Up of Blanco Posnet" two other plays were given last evening. One of these, "The Building Fund," contained [illegible] of delicious Irish comedy in which Sara Allgood and Arthur Sinclair [illegible] agreeable work. "The Rising of the Moon," a one-act play by Lady Gregory, was also presented. In this Mr. Sinclair again revealed his high quality of acting.

EX-SENATOR ALDRICH ON HIS WAY HOME

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Among those sailing on the Baltic was ex-Senator Nelson Aldrich, who has been at Aix-les-Bains working hard on the report of the National Monetary Commission, which is to be presented to Congress in January. Others on board the Baltic were Cecil Baring, the banker; Countess Hoyos, Grosvenor S. Hubbard of New York, and J. C. McCoy, the aeronaut.

ONLY GORILLA IN U. S. DEAD

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Mlle. Ngogo, the only living gorilla in this country, was gathered to her simian fathers in the Bronx zoo. In the way which Curator Ditmars says is the way of all gorilla flesh in this climate. In her brief ten days' sojourn here, however, she achieved an endurance record. She died of homesickness and starvation.

Mlle. Ngogo, who was a year old, was about two feet high. She was the treasure trove of a great expedition sent out by the New York Zoological Society in charge of Professor R. L. Garner into the French Congo.

Professor Garner and his party pushed 124 miles into the French Congo before they found Mlle. Ngogo. Almost immediately, however, Mlle. Ngogo, who did not like civilization, began to sicken. Professor Garner fed her [illegible] on plantain leaves, the sole diet of the gorilla tribe, and she picked up a bit.

All the way on the trip from West Africa to this country, however, Mlle. Ngogo remained sulky. Curator Britton of the Botanical Gardens sent over a daily allowance of plantain leaves from his department for her, but she would eat only sparingly, and wasted away rapidly.

MARBLES WITH TOES FLAT-FOOT CURE

CINCINNATI, Oct. 6.—The girls at the University of Cincinnati are going to learn to play marbles with their toes this Winter. Miss Marguerite Gray, athletic instructor, will teach the students to pick up marbles with their toes. This exercise is a cure for flat feet, and is calculated, too, to raise the arch of the instep to the height so much desired. Another exercise for the young women will be standing on tiptoes. This, as any premiere danseuse will tell them, strengthens the muscles of the foot and calf.

The Charm of Youth To Any Complexion

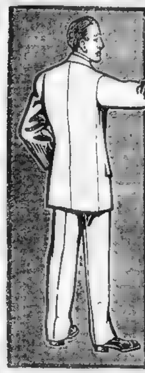

(What to Wear)

Many complexions are nearly ruined through the excessive use of powders and cosmetics, which clog pores and smother the skin. An excellent lotion to correct this condition and remove blackheads, wrinkles and "moth patches," and otherwise beautify the complexion can be made by dissolving an original package of mayatone in eight ounces of witch-hazel.

This lotion, applied to the face, neck and arms, then gently massaged in, gradually removes all impurities and fine lines, and gives to the skin that soft, velvety texture, and delightful tint and youth-like glow. The continued use of the mayatone lotion does away with the use of powder or rouge, as the skin is kept clear, soft and beautiful.

BOTH GUILTY OF MURDER.

FARMINGTON, Me., Oct. 6.—A verdict that both men were guilty of murder was reported by a jury which heard the evidence against Giovanni Nota and Guiseppe [illegible] in the Supreme Court for the murder of Dominico Ventrelli at Chisholm on the night of May 6.

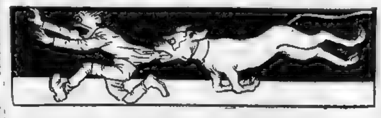

The Missing Word

By MORTON BIRGE.

We see by the papers C. Kellogg's in town from far California's coast
And what is still more that deep animal lore is Mister C. Kellogg's proud boast.
He says that all creatures from chickens to bears will come when he calls, so he spends [illegible] with various animal friends.

A few years ago, if one's memory serves, we met a strange dog on a walk.
We failed to possess Brother Kellogg's address in matters of animal talk.
So passed the dog by and said never a word, but that was a sociable tyke
And lacking a tree 'twas not long before we were bitten some more than we like.

We don't yearn for skill in persuading a dog or bear or a bob-cat to come.
That sort of control doesn't lighten our soul, no matter how pleasing to some.
But what we would like is some kind of a word to speak in an hour of need
So whatever heard that particular word would hustle away at high speed.

GIRL APPEALS TO MISSING UNCLE

If "Uncle Johnny" Waite reads this appeal from his little niece, Margie Sears, of No. 7 Fountain street, Waltham, he will [illegible] come to see her.

In her letter to the AMERICAN the little miss says: "I am writing for mama. She is worrying about you."

The missing uncle was in the Spanish war. Many years have passed since his sister, Mrs. Margaret Sears, and her folks heard from him. Little Margie says they are anxious to see him. Following is her appeal, which she asked this paper to publish in the hope that he or someone who knows of his whereabouts will see it.

"Uncle Johnny, mama would like to see you very much. We are all worrying about you, as we feel something has happened to you.

"Dear Uncle Johnny, please come home, as mama has been trying to find you for a long time. The last mother heard from you was about three years ago, when she was living with Aunt Jennie. Uncle Johnny, if you see this in the paper please come home or at least write to mama."

ECZEMA ON SCALP HEALED IN 4 DAYS

Small Mattery Pimple on Top of Child's Head. Broke and Formed Hard Crust. Very Itchy. Not a Sign of It Since Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured Her.

"It affords me pleasure to tell of the good Cuticura Soap and Ointment have done my little girl. She had eczema on the scalp last fall. The trouble began in this way. First a small mattery pimple appeared. The pimple broke and the matter, a watery substance, ran on the skin, forming a hard crust which was very itchy. It was on the top of her head and the crust became as large as the palm of my hand. My doctor said it was a form of eczema.

"I used a remedy but had no success with it. I used it nearly two weeks, then a friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used the Cuticura Ointment, applied it on the scalp at night and morning, and in four days the scalp was all healed, no sign of crusts or scabs could be seen. Then I washed her hair with Cuticura Soap. She has not had a sign of eczema since Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured her, and I shall always keep them in my house.

"I can prove this statement by my neighbor and family." (Signed) Mrs. H. B. Cooley, Marlboro, N. Y., Apr. 3, 1911.

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Ointment have afforded the speediest and most economical treatment for torturing, disfiguring affections of the skin and scalp of infants, children and adults. A single cake of Cuticura Soap (25c.) and box of Cuticura Ointment (50c.) are often sufficient. Although sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world, a liberal sample of each, with 32-p. book on the skin, will be sent free, on application to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 4A, Boston.

CANDIDATE IS WEDDING HERO

A pretty wedding took place at St. Paul's Catholic Church, Woodward Park street, Dorchester, when the Rt. Rev. Joseph G. Anderson, bishop of Boston, and pastor of the church, united in wedlock Miss Laura Chase, daughter of Mrs. William Chase of Magnolia street, to Attorney Henry J. Dixon of No. 4 Davidson avenue, Dorchester, a candidate for councillor from the second district. Mr. Dixon did not permit politics to interfere with his wedding plan.

Miss Mary Roche was the maid of honor, and Representative James A. McElaney the best man. The bride was attired in a pretty white satin creation of the latest pattern and carried lilies of the valley and orchids, also wearing a tulle veil.

After the ceremony there was a buffet luncheon at the home of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Dixon left for a two weeks' honeymoon trip to the White Mountains. They will be at home at No. 4 Davidson avenue after November 1.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Oct. 6.—John Armstrong Chaloner, in continuing his deposition in his suit to recover $1,500,000 held for him by a court committee in New York on the ground he is insane, declared his relatives, the Chanlers of New York, had him committed to Bloomingdale Asylum in 1897 because they had learned he had ignored his brothers and sisters in his will and because he had in his possession facts that would be very damaging to Lewis Morris Rutherford and others.

By TED PARKE.

A little resting spell was granted the Harvard eleven this afternoon in preparation for the struggle with Holy Cross to-morrow, the first contest on the gridiron which has taken place between the Crimson and the Worcester boys for seven years. The substance of the training for the Crimson warriors was a little tackling of the dummy, punting, catching and running down under kicks and a signal drill for the first two elevens lasting about half an hour. This work will serve to keep the men on their toes and loosen them up for the game to-morrow, and will not fag them too much.

For the past few days the Crimson team has altered to a certain [illegible] and it now looks as if temporarily at least, Rogers had beaten Jenkins out for the position of left tackle. The way in which the team will probably face Holy Cross will be the order in which it lined up against the second team and the subs in yesterday's scrimmage, as follows: [illegible] Rogers, l.g.; Keays, c.; Storer, r.g.; Fisher, r.t.; Gardner, r.e.; [illegible] Potter, l.h.b.; Wendell, r.h.b.; Campbell, f.b.; Morrison.

In the scrimmage yesterday Keays turned an ankle slightly so that there is the slightest possibility that he may not be used to-morrow, although this chance is remote, but if he should be kept out either Leslie or McGuire will take his place in the first line-up.

Score Against Both

The varsity scrimmaged about half an hour yesterday, first against the second team and then against the subs, a touchdown being scored against each opponent. Both tallies came on long runs. The first one, that against the second team, was scored by Potter, the quarter, who took a punt on his own twenty-five yard line and by some clever running through a broken field he carried the ball eighty-five yards for a score. Later when the varsity was battling their own subs one of the subs' backfield fumbled the ball on a [illegible] and Captain Fisher recovered and did a fast eighty-five yards to the goal line.

The varsity and the subs, when the latter scrimmaged with the second team were kept almost entirely on the defensive to strengthen this end of the playing. In the first scrimmage the second team [illegible] with the varsity [illegible] eight downs [illegible] first team on the [illegible] yards was the [illegible] they were [illegible] to kick and [illegible]

The [illegible] was not true [illegible] the subs against the varsity. The [illegible] were [illegible] to make first down by straight line play, but Wigglesworth got off four forward passes for [illegible] distance. Each time, however [illegible] the subs got the ball [illegible] twenty-five yards from the varsity goal, the defence of the latter tightened up and not another inch could be gained [illegible] forward pass or straight line [illegible] twice the sub backs were thrown for losses by the first team linemen [illegible] through.

The varsity [illegible] rushing the ball against [illegible] Wendell and Campbell [illegible] and short end runs [illegible] several times. But on the second down Potter usually resorted to punting so that little can be said of the present [illegible] of the first eleven's offence.

Decided Improvement.

There was however a decided improvement in the playing of Keays at left guard. He nailed practically every play that was sent at him, either by breaking through the line and [illegible] it before it reached [illegible] or by [illegible] strong the [illegible] Rogers [illegible] Keays also showed up [illegible] [illegible] best line tackle [illegible] some excellent work [illegible]

[illegible] showed up far better yesterday [illegible] [illegible] at his tackle [illegible] better [illegible] took his place [illegible] to send plays [illegible] fast work of [illegible]

One of the features of the scrimmage [illegible] Campbell on a [illegible] run. He [illegible] twenty-five yards or both of these [illegible] and pretty dodging [illegible] interference, this [illegible] greatly improved upon since [illegible]

[illegible] of the varsity [illegible] during the past several [illegible] and stop [illegible] formerly [illegible] [illegible] Wigglesworth for the general [illegible] Wigglesworth got more life [illegible] of the team yesterday [illegible] excellently aided [illegible] a moment [illegible] showing that he [illegible]

[illegible] varsity squad was added to yesterday [illegible] Dana, an end on the freshmen team last year and until yesterday a member of the second squad this season was taken to the varsity. He played in Smith's [illegible] at right end for a short time and showed up well, although he seems to lack experience at present.

Holy Cross Confident.

WORCESTER, Oct. 6.—[illegible] football team [illegible] Harvard [illegible] showed weakness [illegible] Saturday with the [illegible] this week no signs of weakness [illegible] Tobin, the giant [illegible] of last year's eleven, will be seen [illegible] Harvard game at left tackle while [illegible] will fill the right half [illegible] of Captain Joy, who is [illegible]

[illegible] drop-kicker of Holy Cross [illegible] given a chance to show [illegible] McCabe [illegible] end [illegible] Purple and White [illegible]

Brown Coming Fast.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 6.—[illegible] Brown [illegible] squad through a [illegible] yesterday [illegible] of the fact that the men were [illegible] the effects of the [illegible] State Wednesday [illegible] the line work [illegible] contest as it showed for the first time this season that the team could make its distance on plunges through the line.

In the first game the team played an open battle, the forward pass being the main factor. Wednesday, however, most of the ground was gained on breaks through the opposing line. Brown making first down time after time on the slippery field. That the defence needs strengthening is evident and the work of the coaches from now on will be to make a machine which cannot only batter but stand battering.

Yale is Crippled.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 6.—Only signal work was on the card for the Yale football players to-day. Yale expects a stiff argument from Syracuse to-morrow but has no fear of defeat. Last year Yale won 15 to 6, and will face the same team to-morrow with her three best ends, Camp, Bomeisler and Gallagher crippled, but expects to equal last year's figures and to keep Syracuse from scoring. Bill Howe of Boston, the swimmer and oarsman, will play right end and Avery, who scored the touchdown against Holy Cross, will take the other wing. The Syracuse eleven is expected here this afternoon to [illegible]

Milford vs. Westboro at Westboro.
Williston vs. Yale Freshmen at Easthampton.

The schoolboy gridiron warriors are in for a big day to-morrow. Close to thirty games are down on the schedule, and some hard ones are anticipated.

Great interest is being shown in the Mechanic Arts-Waltham game, to be played this season, so it is the favorite, but its followers do not expect anything soft.

The Watch City team defeated Natick, 12 to 0, and Mechanics could only tie Natick, so the followers of the two teams have a little dope on their relative strength, but the Natick game was the opener for the Boston team, and they have progressed in play since then.

Somerville High will inaugurate its season to-morrow with the Cambridge Latin team as its opponents. The real football strength of the Red and Blue team is unknown, but it looks fast in practice and may surprise some of its followers, who [illegible] the line [illegible] weak. It is true Somerville's line is not big and strong as is usual, but all hands are out for the game and will play their hardest to win.

Cambridge Has Ability.

Cambridge Latin already has shown its ability as pigskin chasers, and it may be said that the team will have to be considered seriously by the followers of the Red and Blue. The latest stunt of the Cantabs was to hold the strong Harvard freshmen team to a low score, and it was only after a lot of hard work that the Crimson team was able to cop.

The Cantabs have one of the heaviest and strongest teams that has represented the school across for many years. The team averages in weight much more than the ordinary schoolboy eleven. Captain Greene has some bright stars and they will work their hardest to down the Somerville team.

Boston English High will play its second game to-morrow with the Groton school eleven as its opponents. The Blue and Blue team made a good stand against Brookline High on Wednesday, and demonstrated that it is no weakling. Groton school, it will be remembered, gave Boston Latin an awful setback last week by trouncing it 12 to 0 and this feat stamped the team up among the leaders.

Medford Has Hard Game.

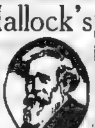

Medford will run into a hard team from Woburn. The loss of Dean, the clever quarterback, on the Woburn team, who broke a leg in the opening game of the season, is severely felt, but nevertheless the boys stand ready to put up a hard fight. The Medford followers are not worrying over their chances.

Many other games will be played and much interest is being manifested. Melrose will inaugurate its season playing Milton, Dorchester plays Revere at Dorchester, South Boston goes to Needham, Rindge Technical will have a hard game with St. Marks at Southboro, and Milton Academy will get a good workout with Roxbury Latin as its opponents.

WILL YOU LISTEN TO ME!
—POSNER

A Stein-Bloch $22.50 Model

IF I can't get a man to listen to what I have to say, then I can't do business with him.

If you will give me the time it takes to read this ad I feel that I can interest you up to the point of coming into my store this Fall and looking at a suit of clothes.

I won't ask you to buy a suit. I have told my salesmen not to embarrass intelligent men by trying to sell something to them that they don't wish to buy.

The Stein-Bloch lines of clothes have the quality to sell themselves. At any rate my experience with these suits and overcoats has taught me to believe so.

You know that I have been doing business on School Street for 15 years. In that time my merchandise has built up a trade for Posner's in collars, shirts, neckwear, gentlemen's furnishings, hats and gloves larger in volume than that of any men's retail store in America.

In fact, my store does a business in many lines greater than that of any 5 other men's retail stores in Boston put together.

I don't say this in any boastful vein. I merely state it as a fact because it is the most appealing thing that I can offer to any man who will think.

The fact that more men visit my store every day to buy goods than visit any 5 other men's retail stores in Boston put together will not be true tomorrow if I don't deliver the values today.

Posner's means values. Posner's means dealing with the public on a liberal scale—standing by the article sold until it has done its work by the man who paid down his money to get it.

If Dave Posner can be trusted to sell a man a collar for 10 cents, then Dave Posner can be trusted to sell a man a suit of clothes for $20.

The biggest asset I have in my business is my reputation as a merchant—represented by over 100,000 men who buy goods at my store—year in and year out.

The old Posner patrons—men who have known the store and its methods for 15 years past—require no second invitation to buy clothes in my new clothing department.

They have already availed themselves of this Posner innovation. They have already established this department—scarcely 7 months open—as the biggest department in the Posner store.

But I want you—the man who never traded at Posner's—I want you to step into this homelike Clothing Department and inspect the line.

Stay as long as you like! Try on as many coats as you wish. Ask all the questions you care to ask.

Buy a suit if you feel as though you are getting just what you want—for less money than any other dealer can sell it to you. Don't buy anything if you don't wish to do so!

If you buy a Stein-Bloch Suit or Overcoat—by far the handsomest and most stylish line of gentlemen's tailored clothes built in America—the price will be

$18 $20 $22.50 $25 and Upwards

If you choose from the Posner built line of men's classy garments, the price for suit or overcoat will be just an even.............................. $15

If you believe what I say about the goods sold at Posner's—if you believe that you are going to get the right merchandise at right prices at my store—if you feel safe in coming into a strange store for the first time to inspect goods, I assure you that the minute your foot is inside the doorway you will never again be a stranger at

SILK HAT HARRY'S DIVORCE SUIT

By Tad

SILK HAT HARRY'S DIVORCE SUIT IS THE TALK OF NEW ENGLAND. IT APPEARS REGULARLY IN THE SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Sunday's American for Best Football Stories

Saturday, October 7, is the first real "big" day in the college and school football season. Harvard meets Holy Cross, Yale plays Syracuse, Dartmouth battles Colby, Brown lines up against the Massachusetts "Aggies"—in fact all the big teams and the "little ones" as well, are scheduled for hard conflicts. The best accounts of all these football games will appear in the Sunday AMERICAN.

BASEBALL MAY STOP AUTO TOUR

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The craze for the [illegible] the start of the [illegible] will be postponed so that the motorists can see the opening game of the world's series [illegible]

The start of the [illegible] was fixed some weeks ago for Saturday, October 14 [illegible] between the Giants and Athletics [illegible] Polo Grounds.

World's Series Primer

By R. W. LARDNER

E is for Eddie, both Collins and Plank
On both of which athletes the Philly fans bank
On Plank to prevent New York swats with his left,
On Collins for many a base hit and theft.

F is for Fletcher, the Giant shortstop,
Expected hard liners and grounders to cop
And Polo Grounds fans are all eager to bet 'er
That very few things will get by Arthur Fletcher.

G is for George, and his other name's Wiltse,
The hero of all kinds of strenuous tilts, he
Can have anything that's possessed by McGraw
If he fools the world's champs with his mighty left paw

H is for Herzog, he's one of the hustlers,
Who hustled his best to get loose from the Rustlers.
He's hustling now for McGraw at third base,
And they say he's so fast that he burns up the place.

I is for Innings, and also for It
The ball that they'll all try their hardest to hit,
It's an innocent thing, but they all want to clout it,
And the whole darned nation's gone crazy about it.

(To Be Continued).

SANFORD, Me., Oct. 6.—Darney Farrell, shortstop of the Limericks, amateur champions of Maine, has been signed by the Lowell, Mass., New England club for a tryout.

BRISTOL LORD, SPEEDY FIELDER

To-day's article is the twentieth published in the Daily AMERICAN dealing with the players who will figure in the world's series, by R. W. Lardner. One will appear each day.

By R. W. LARDNER.

Bristol Lord, who is called "Bris" by his mates, was once a pitcher, but outgrew it. He is now regular left fielder on the Philadelphia American League Club's team, which will defend or try to defend its title to the world's championship in the big series which starts next week.

"Bris" is unfortunate in that he is hooked up with a bunch of brighter stars, and he doesn't shine as he would with the St. Louis Browns or the Brooklyn Dodgers (not to say the Boston Rustlers). By the critics he is considered the weak spot in the Athletics' lineup, but he keeps on drawing the regular pay and probably worries less about it than those on the outside.

Lord was born in Upland, which is in Pennsylvania, in 1883. He first played ball in his home town in 1902. In 1904 he joined the Lancaster Club, pitching and playing the outfield. In August of that same season he joined the Coatesville Club, and was grabbed that fall by the Athletics.

"Bris" figured in the world's championship of 1905 and remained a member of the Mack forces until 1907, when he was shipped to New Orleans. Cleveland got him in 1909 and traded him to Philadelphia for Infielder Rath, who is now in the minors. Lord is about five feet nine inches tall, and weighs 178 pounds. He throws and bats right handed.

The American Boy

By THOMAS TAPPER

His Time.

I

A COLLEGE professor of civil engineering is reported to have said "The best advice I can give to my graduates in engineering is this 'Let your competitors smoke.'"

The professor meant by this that if a young man is going into a business or profession of any kind it will pay him doubly to leave smoking, drinking, gambling, and the like, to his competitors, because they are time-wasters. Hence, leaving out all that could be said about these habits, they reduce the actual working hours.

It is queer that we count money so closely and never count days, hours and minutes. Even if we live to be seventy years of age, which is far above the average of human life, we have at our command only a trifle over twenty-five thousand days. If an American Boy works from seventeen to seventy his working time is at once cut down to nineteen thousand days. At the least calculation he will sleep one-third of this time, which leaves him about twelve thousand days. If he eats and finds relaxation in three hours a day he will use up one-eighth of this balance, or fifteen hundred days, leaving him ten thousand five hundred days, or three-sevenths of his total allowance.

He has now before him a fair time allowance for work on the basis of a seventy-year life.

But he cannot be sure of seventy years, nor of one year. The gift of long life is not promised. And if it were, he may have to reduce his ten thousand five hundred days more or less considerably, by charging against them days of illness, accident, enforced idleness (when there is no work to be had), and so on. Thus, his ten thousand five hundred days, out of an uncertain seventy years, dwindle again.

If he can be assured of one-third of his [illegible] for work he is probably counting on the maximum. This is about eight thousand days.

II

Is there anything the American Boy can do to insure his time? As there is no way by which he can be assured of seventy years, which yield only about eight thousand days of work, the best thing he can do is to insure his time day by day. There is some uncertainty even in this, but let him have faith that he can do this. The chances are in his favor.

One day has twenty-four hours. If the American Boy is his own boss he can work as many of the twenty-four hours as he pleases. As to the time to sleep properly, eat food and care for his health, these are the basis of health, he will learn what time he must devote to them. They are more his business than his actual work, for work depends on health and health comes from proper sleep, food and care of the body.

Now, with the work hours before him, he is master of a situation that will yield him power and independence UNLESS HE BECOMES HIS OWN COMPETITOR. If he does that, he has sold out to the enemy.

An American Boy becomes his own competitor when he introduces into working hours, time-destroying activities.

There is considerable grim humor in the popular saying: "If whiskey interferes with your business, give up business." It sounds like a joke, but it has a basis of truth in it, for it may be translated into this form: "If whiskey interferes with your business, it will probably kill both the business and you."

It must be clear now, to the American Boy, what the college professor meant:

Let the other man kill his business, if he wants to; but you stick tight to yours, and get something out of every minute of the working day.

And even if you do this, there is still another thing for you to do, if you want to make the most of the other man's weakness. It is this:

Do nothing OUTSIDE OF BUSINESS HOURS that will send you back to your job the next morning with a bad head.

The brain, the nerves, the muscular system are your servants with which to get work done. It is poor economy to maim and destroy the very servants on which you depend for success.

And, speaking of success, it always becomes a question whether the American Boy cares more for his future, independence and character than he does for his stomach.

If he sets more store by the former, he will be a man among men; if by the latter, there is no classification for him because the lover of evil things for the stomach is neither a true man nor a true animal.

A true man eats and drinks to live, and a true animal never begs for a drink at the back door of a saloon.

Restores Natural Color to Gray Hair.

Not a Stain or Dye.

That growing old and gray is unwelcome to most of us is shown by the almost unbelievable quantity of hair dyes and stains that are sold each year in the United States. Aside from the danger that attends the use of these preparations, it is well known that even the best of them cannot give permanent results and that they color the hair unevenly and in patches, making the user ridiculous to any close observer.

Printed below is the prescription or formula for a preparation that is not a stain or dye and contains no coloring matter but which rapidly restores natural color to gray, streaked or faded hair in a manner which is truly remarkable, [illegible] its action in reviving and stimulating the color sacs in the hair roots, [illegible] them with the natural food and nourishment which they require. What Would Be Your Three Wishes?

Some of the Best Replies by the American's Readers

A FLOOD of wishes has poured in upon the AMERICAN as a result of its invitation to its readers to tell in what they would ask for if some good fairy should grant them three wishes.

Wisdom, love and a united family were the three wishes forty years ago of Wheaton Seabury of Providence, R. I., who writes:

"Wisdom is acquired only through experience.

"Love is the fruit of faithfulness.

"A united family is a gift from God.

"The first two wishes I have in abundance. As our four children, two boys and two girls, are unmarried, my third wish is as yet undecided.

"The result of these three wishes is renunciation, that is, the renunciation which comes to every father and mother who have successfully reared a family of children and to the vanguard in every calling of life—but not the renunciation of the recluse who is afraid to live and trust in God.

"This renunciation gives one not only eternal life, but happiness and contentment under all conditions and vicissitudes of life.

"If I could have foreseen the innumerable failures, the endless humiliations and the daily struggles which my three wishes would entail I never should have had the courage to persevere to a realization of the fulfillment of my heart's desire."

Aurin F. Hill of Boston wishes "first, for old-age pensions for every old man and for every old woman who belongs in Massachusetts, who asks for a pension; second, for good homes and good first-class and fire-proof tenements in Boston; third, for good health and comfort the rest of my life.

"I do not like the way old men and old women, when they are properly poor, are used in Massachusetts.

"The old man and the old woman worker ought to be pensioned, regardless of having been in public employ or not. Be fair and just to the old workers, because they have been the real taxpayers and producers."

Marion Hertha Clarke of Saxton's River, Vt., writes:

"Once the Spirit of Childhood whispered to you the old, unanswered question, 'What three things do you most desire, little maiden with the dreaming eyes?' And once when you were a little child and believed in fairies you said. "I want to be beautiful, and I want to be rich, and I want a lover. He must be very tall and very handsome, and ride a beautiful white horse with golden trappings.' And you went to bed and you dreamed that all your wishes came true. You were so beautiful and so rich and your lover so handsome, and he carried you away on his beautiful white horse with the golden trappings that just matched your yellow curls. And you were just fording a very deep river, and your Prince was so big and brave, when some one called, 'Come, get up; you will be late for school,' and the beautiful dream was broken and you weren't beautiful or rich or anything, and you didn't care whether school kept or not.

"Now that the years have added experience and the dreamy eyes are not quite so large and life not so new, you know that had you been beautiful you would have been proud. Had you been rich you would have been selfish. Since the eyes of childhood are mirrored with fewer dreams when the Spirit of Wishes again whispers, 'What three things do you most desire, O weary heart?' desire tempered by wisdom, by prayers unanswered, vain hopes, futile yearnings and bitter disappointments would cause you to say, if you are still wise, 'Give me not wealth, beauty or love, or, kind spirit, but rather enthusiasm, that I may do my part in life, not only well, but in the joy of doing. Give me of the enthusiasm to discover the Continent of Self; of the enthusiasm that has painted our greatest pictures, penned our highest lyrics; the enthusiasm that never wears the bandage of doubt on its eyes; that chill, starve, hurt cannot weaken, but that gives birth to courage, hope and cheerfulness to keep ever bright the weather of the heart, that I may spread to the sick and unfortunate the sunshine of cheer.

"Then, dear Fairy, give me loyalty: loyalty to be true to the undertaking of life; to be strong and steadfast to my ideals, my work and myself; the loyalty that makes the thing to which I am loyal mine; the loyalty to friends, society, business that makes poise, purpose and power. Let it be woven into the fabric of my being so that the 'tapestry of mosaic life' may be rich in design, harmonious in color.

"And lastly, give me love; not to be loved, but to love; to love life; to see the beautiful, miss the evil and render the service that springs from good will alone; the unselfish love of a deep interest in another being. Not the love of sentimental youth, but the love of home, country, friends and of one; the equal and pure love seen in gray hair and the heart of youth.

"Grant my childhood dream of wishes come true, dear Fairy. These three do I ask: Enthusiasm, loyalty and love."

Mrs. Louis Mason Briand of Woburn writes the three greatest wishes of her life are:

"That my husband go as far ahead in this world as his ambitions would carry him.

"That my baby girl grow up into a beautiful and good woman.

"That my parents have every comfort in their old age."

The wishes of Anna Muriel Dunlap are all for the good of society. She writes:

"I cannot conceive of an individual wish, the gratification of which would yield permanent satisfaction, save that which arises for the general welfare of society.

"In this great mismanaged world of plenty, where the minority possess too much and the majority too little, I wish there could be a social reconstruction of society that all might share in the material benefits of life and thus lay a foundation for a mental, moral and physical upbuilding of the human race. To-day life is trampled down by gilded greed, liberty is mocked by the arrogance of economic [illegible] and [illegible] consigned to Limbo in the struggle for a bare existence.

"The fulfillment of such a wish would enable the dormant faculties of the human [illegible] awaken to a realization of individual and social freedom. The will would [illegible] development by scaling heights rather than in the cruder way of overcoming obstacles, thus yielding delights to the whole gamut of human experience and higher activities, from the agriculturist to the artist. The divorce courts would then be freed from women who are forced to marry for support, and the warrior transformed into a votary of peace—a factor in the unfoldment of life's constructive process."

Health, employment and the gift of giving happiness to others, are the wishes of Annie B. Hudson, of Exeter, N. H. She writes:

"My three wishes would be these: First, Health, for when I feel well I am always happy. Second, the assurance of a good position as long as I live that I may be able to support myself and those dependent upon me. Third, to possess the gift of bringing happiness to every person with whom I come in contact.

"'For heavy is the weight of ill in every heart, And comforters are needed much of Christ-like touch.'"

Only one of the three wishes of Mrs. Mary E. Hession of Dorchester is for herself. Her wishes follow:

"First: I wish for good health for my family.

"Second: I wish my sons and daughters to lead a good, honest, moral, busy life.

"Third: I wish to be good enough to meet a Divine Creator when the day of judgment comes."

Mrs. Eva St. John of South Swansea writes:

"At the age of thirty-two I am the mother of seven children, who with my husband give me love and power. The only other wishes worth while in my opinion are faith, hope and charity."

Valuable Asset

NOTHING is sacred nowadays. A bankrupt was telling the Court how poor he was and how much money he had lost by commercial depression, when the official receiver remarked:

"You have very good teeth, Mr. Stylish."

"Yes," innocently replied the bankrupt "they are very sound."

"How much did you give for them?" was the next question and it was a poser.

"Must I answer such a rude question?" asked the bankrupt, appealing to the Judge.

"Certainly," answered the man of law.

"Well, I gave fifty guineas for them."

"Ah, very good," said the official receiver; "then hand them over for the benefit of your creditors."

SOMETHING was up with Robinson. He had sat all the morning at his desk with a doleful expression and had hardly uttered a word.

The pretty typist smiled at him. He made no response. The rain ceased and the sun came out. It shed no warmth upon Robinson's soul. The annual holiday was mentioned. Robinson scowled and bit his pen.

But when the boss came in and made a breezy joke Robinson's attitude became a real menace.

"Laugh, you idiot! The boss has made a joke!" muttered his neighbor, who was following the diplomatic lead of his fellow-clerks and indulging in hearty merriment.

"Why should I?" grunted Robinson in response. "I'm leaving on Saturday."

DISFIGURING FACIAL ERUPTION OVERCOME

Woman Tries Resinol With Excellent Results

"I take great pleasure in testifying to the most excellent results from the use of Resinol, both ointment and soap. I had been troubled for four or five years with a very disfiguring eruption on my face, and Resinol has helped it so much."
MISS OPAL LILLEY,
Camp Creek, W. Va.

Resinol Ointment is the one recognized safe and sure remedy for every kind of skin trouble, from the common pimple or scratch to eczema, tetter, shingles, milkcrust, dandruff, psoriasis, boils, burns, scalds, carbuncles, felons and sores. It cannot irritate the most delicate skin. It does not contain a particle of lead or mercury, or other poison. It is as harmless and as easy to apply as cold cream. Resinol Ointment is put up in screw-top opal containers, retailing at fifty cents and a dollar. Resinol Soap, similarly medicated, is in many respects the finest toilet and bath soap possible of production. It is delightfully refreshing and is thoroughly antiseptic. It prevents blackheads, pimples and many other skin troubles, and for shampooing and cleansing the scalp there is nothing better. It is especially recommended for children and infants, for its continuous use will keep them exempt from many of the common skin troubles. It is pleasant, refreshing, soothing and preventive. The Resinol preparations are sold by all druggists and dealers in fine toilet articles. Sample sent free if you will mention Department No. 58, Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

Plain Irish Stew

IMAGINE a French chef preparing an Irish stew! Yet, Monsieur A. Escoffier, the most famous cook in the world, who is writing a series of articles on cooking for the Sunday AMERICAN, has a mighty fine recipe for Irish stew in his list of recipes printed in next Sunday's edition.

Here it is:

SIMPLE RAGOUT MODE IRLANDAISE, OR PLAIN IRISH STEW

CUT up two pounds of mutton, place the pieces in a saucepan of convenient size. The best meat for this purpose is from the breast, the neck or the shoulder. Cut it in pieces of three to four ounces.

Add a large glass of water, then put the saucepan on the fire, cover it and let the water evaporate completely. Add another glass of water, allow it to evaporate and then salt and pepper to taste. Next add four large onions divided into quarters, a bunch of parsley, thyme and bay.

Moisten with just sufficient water to cover the meat completely. Cover the saucepan and let it boil for twenty-five to thirty minutes. Then add to the mutton two pounds of potatoes skinned and divided in four. Cover them with hot water. Season them again if you like it highly seasoned. Cover the saucepan and finish cooking. Remove the bunch of herbs before serving.

This dish is also excellent, if sliced carrots and turnips are added. In this case you must also slice up the potatoes. Be careful to put the carrots and turnips to cook fifteen minutes before the potatoes. Potatoes cooked to pieces spoil the stew.

In this method no flour thickening should be used.

And that is only one of the good things he has to offer. Don't overlook his famous recipes.

Desperate Desmond

Copyright, 1911, by the National News Association

A Continued Picture Drama of Love and Hate, with a Thrill in Its Every Picture

Carefully Desmond stalks around the minaret, his evil intention being to assassinate the unsuspecting Claude, and then to steal the beautiful Rosamond. Seldom does a villain come out openly and attack a hero; he always does some underhand stunt.

Inside the dome of the Indian village a discontented Hindoo stores away large quantities of ammunition. Some day he hopes that the "India for Indians" party may use the ammunition to drive foreigners out of the country. If anything should explode the powder—bang!

Inside the minaret a large number of rats, starved for food, attack the stored cartridges. The rodents little guess that a successful attack upon the cartridges will end their lives so suddenly that they will not know what happened.

Just as Desmond thinks he has the lovers at his mercy, the busy little rats have succeeded in blowing up the store of explosives. Away goes the gun from Desmond's hand—there is no Sullivan law in India—and off goes his hat.

Desmond's silk hat is known to villains of all colors, from Borneo to India, and when the Indians see it fall they not unnaturally jump to the conclusion that Desmond has turned traitor. There is really no honor among villains.

"I'm the boy!" cries Desperate Desmond, "but the elephant's heavier than I am." It is apparently a hopeless position for the great white villain. He appears sure to be crushed to death. At last Claude may breathe freely. For full details see tomorrow's paper.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

AN UNWELCOME SUITOR

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am nineteen, and a young man, five years my senior, deeply loves me. I do not care for him at all. He calls at my home quite often. I would like to know from you what to do to keep him away. M. D. C.

THE next time he comes to see you have some other friend there with you. Or you could avoid being at home at the hour he is in the habit of calling.

Again, you might suggest asking in other girls and boys of your acquaintance, and in this way you will please every one, besides injuring no one's feelings.

He will gradually realize how you feel towards him. I would not be rude—only indifferent, and with as little abruptness as possible.

TRY TO SEE HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Through some misunderstanding the man I dearly love refuses to talk to me. Will it be called "lowering myself" if I ask his forgiveness? ANXIOUS.

NO, you would not be "lowering yourself" to want to make friends again, but not do ask "his forgiveness."

Make an opportunity of seeing him and then find out what the trouble is.

If he is in the right he will appreciate your action and nothing will be lost; on the other hand, if he is wrong, he owes you an apology for his ungentlemanly behavior.

DISOBEYED INSTRUCTIONS

Dr. Diagnosis—Did your husband follow my directions? Did he take the medicine I left for him religiously?

PART ONE—(Continued)

SHE leaned back against the arch of the unglazed cloister window where she sat and looked out over the green quadrangle it enclosed with eyes that strove to pierce through the gray mists that hid Africa. Then presently into her vision, weaving itself curiously into the thoughts that were so remote from Runescot and its quiet close, came a figure. She saw Conrad Tring coming toward her.

A half-conscious instinct prompted her to thrust the letter she held into the bosom of her dress. As she did so she started, for some one had spoken behind her, addressed her by name.

She looked around hastily. It was the dean. His house lay at the end of the cloister where she sat, and he was evidently returning to it. His hands were full of official looking papers. Among them mechanically she noted the orange envelope of a telegram.

"My dear Miss Westgarth." His voice had always a pulpit tone that the girl hated; the intonation was accentuated now. "What can I say to express our sympathy for you? It is hard enough when our dear ones fall on the field of battle, but to be struck down before the combat has even begun! Poor Martindale! Well, the loss is ours, and his reward is in heaven."

The girl said nothing; she stared out before her with wide, terrified eyes—eyes that seemed to Conrad Tring to hold a reproach that he should have come too late.

For Conrad Tring it was a memory never to be effaced, this scene whose setting was the gray perspective of the cloister arches. The girl's white, stricken, scarcely comprehending face; the prim little churchman whose whiskered countenance wore an expression of almost guilty consternation.

Dean Quilter had felt an almost womanish pleasure in being among the first to commiserate with the girl whose bereavement would for a time raise her to a pinnacle of interest in the eyes of the cathedral town, but he had never for a moment contemplated anything so acutely unpleasant as the actual breaking to a woman of the news of her lover's death.

"Con . . ." Clemency stretched out her hand gropingly toward Tring, unconsciously calling him by the name she had heard her lover use, and Tring caught the hand and held it fast. "Is it true?" she whispered. "Tell me, is it true?"

World Was Reeling

He bent his head. "I am afraid that there is no doubt but that it is true," he said quietly. "Martindale contracted fever on the journey up country and died on the march. I had a telegram from the C. A. M. S. this morning, and came as quickly as I could. I had hoped to be here before"——

"To break the news?—oh, would that have made it any easier to bear . . ." she broke out passionately, then, controlling herself with an effort, she leaned toward Tring. "Take me away—take me away," she whispered.

The world was reeling about her, and she felt the instinct of a wounded thing to seek cover; the knowledge of the pained curiosity in the dean's mild, spectacled eyes seemed to give her strength. She must not show her heart to this man, who would recall every detail of her agony with the exactness of a French realist to his wife over the luncheon table, before the servants and possible in the presence of his children.

She pulled herself together and thanked him for his sympathy with so excellent a show of calmness that the good man was shocked at her callous demeanor and cited her later as an example of the terrible deterioration of the womanly, tender side in the modern girl.

No word was spoken as they went together through the cloisters and across the close to the gates of the Chantry; Tring had drawn the girl's hand within his arm, and he felt her weight hang heavily on him and knew that she was as unconscious of his presence there beside her as the dead man she mourned lying in his grave beneath the African sky.

But as the house came in sight Clemency spoke.

"I can't face Miss Ridout," she said, shrinkingly. "Mr. Tring, would you tell her what has happened?"

Courage Was Spent

"Don't worry, I'll make things all right," he said, confidently. "Go straight to your room. Can I send any one to you?"

"No, no!" She shook her head; her courage was spent; she dared not trust her voice, and sped away from him, a desolate, shrinking figure, across the wide, empty looking hall and up the great staircase where the white eye sockets of the plaster casts of the gods of old Greece stared after her uncomprehendingly.

As he turned back from the foot of the stairs he met Hannah, the elderly servant who waited on Miss Ridout, and told her briefly what had happened, and it seemed to him that the eyes of the plaster statues were not more chill, more uncomprehending than hers.

"Miss Catherine is in the garden room, sir," she told him, "and she'll be in a rate taking if Miss Westgarth does not go to bring her in to lunch. It's gone one already."

"I'll explain to Miss Ridout that Miss Westgarth is physically incapable of attending upon her at present," he said brusquely, and passed on to the door at the end of the corridor that opened off the hall.

The room was full of sunlight; more pleasant in aspect than he could have imagined any apartment in this grim house could be. The sunlight drew all the color in it into prominence—the deep rich tints of the old walnut tall-boy between the window and the fireplace—the warm hue of the old silk damask curtains, mellowed by time to an almost beautiful rose, that draped the windows.

Had Jarred Tring

He was not afraid of Miss Ridout, though he knew men who quailed before the sting of her sharp tongue, the irony of her pale, ageless eyes. Martindale had confessed to his fear of her—it was the one regret to which his friend had acknowledged, that he must leave Clemency in such unsympathetic keeping.

'She treats her like a slave—Clemency's too patient with the old harridan," he had said. "If I had it in my power to make her my wife before I go—poor little tender Clemency."

The words had jarred Tring at the time by their lack of reticence, they recurred to him now fraught with the tenderness with which we regard the utterances of the dead.

"Good morning, Miss Ridout. I am an unexpected visitor, am I not?" he said cheerily, as he came across the room, "and a greatly daring one, since I have come to invite myself to lunch"——

The sentence broke off abruptly on his lips. There was something strange, surely, in the fixed immobility with which the figure sitting erectly in the uncompromising chair regarded him.

"Miss Ridout!" His tone was sharp, it must have reached even deaf ears. But the figure whose face was turned toward him did not move, and as he looked it seemed to him that the sunlight that had brought out warm tints in furniture and hangings had touched it to an ashen grayness.

"Miss Ridout!" He went forward quickly, but his tone was sharp no longer. Before he touched the lax hands that lay folded in her lap he knew that he spoke to ears that would respond no more to any human voice.

Up-to-Date Jokes

"My wife is devoted to me," moaned the unhappy husband. "She dotes upon me; she can't bear to be out of my sight. And yet I am not happy."

"Does she look after you well?" inquired his friend.

"Look after me well? I should think so! She even takes my boots off for me."

"When you come home from the club, for instance?"

"No; when I want to go there!"

* * *

"Now, then," said the auctioneer, holding up a pair of antique silver candlesticks, "give me a start."

"Half a dollar," came from a voice at the back of the room.

"What!" exclaimed the horrified auctioneer.

"Ah, said the bidder in an undertone, and with a chuckle, "I thought that would give 'im a start!"

* * *

The freckle-faced boy who was about to be emancipated from high-school thraldom was writing his leaving certificate essay. "I suppose I ought to wind it up," he reflected, "with something touching and sentimental about the 'leather-headed, snub-nosed, squeaky voiced, conceited old snoozer that runs the shebang.'" Thereupon he wrote:

"And now, our dear and honored principal, we turn to you," etc., etc., and so on.

R&G CORSETS ABDOBAND

Do not Compress but Support the Abdomen

The "ABDOBAND" holds the abdomen in the normal position and positively prevents the corset from riding up. It takes the strain from the hose supporters and prevents the tearing of the hose.

The feature is a band fastened to the inside of the corset, the ends of which protrude through slits and fasten with buckles on the outside of the corset next to the hips.

You will find the R & G "ABDOBAND" Corset by far the most satisfactory relief from corset discomfort and inconvenience.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STOCKS RALLY AFTER SLUMP

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Fractional losses were sustained in nearly all the important railroads and industrials at the opening of the stock market to-day, but a rallying tendency soon developed and at the end of the first twenty minutes' trading a majority of issues had recovered their losses and added net gains.

Amalgamated Copper, American Smelting, and B. & O. were among the stocks that opened unchanged. Among the initial losses were: United States Steel common, ¼; Erie common, ⅛; Reading, 8; Union Pacific, ¼. Atchison opened ¼ higher. United States Rubber was a strong feature on strength of the declaration that this stock had been put upon a 4 per cent. dividend basis. As the announcement was not made until after the close of the market Thursday, the full effect was felt to-day.

While the market at times showed a wobbling tendency, it did not descend to definite weakness. The curb market opened irregular. American Tobacco was quoted at 309 bid, or 5 points off. Americans in London were sluggish. Canadian Pacific was firm in London.

COUNTY OF SUFFOLK—The Commission on the Inferior Courts of the County of Suffolk, appointed under Chapter 79 of the Resolves of the year 1911, will give a public hearing in Room 446, State House, Boston, on Saturday, October 7, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon. The commission is directed to "investigate the civil and criminal business of said courts including the municipal, police, district and juvenile courts, the amount of business done by each of said courts, their methods, the result of their work and the qualifications and employment of interpreters in judicial proceedings therein. The commission shall also consider the expediency of revising the judicial system of the inferior courts in said county with a view to obtaining greater uniformity, dispatch, efficiency and economy in the administration of justice and shall recommend such legislation as in its opinion will secure these results. The commission will hear all parties interested in these matters except so far as the juvenile courts are concerned, this subject being reserved for a later public hearing. For the Commission, WILFRED BOLSTER, Chairman.

Business Chances.

WHY CANADA REFUSED RECIPROCITY—Because Canadians are now wonderfully prosperous—making money rapidly and surely—splendid chances for investment—land values steadily advancing—millions of new wealth created yearly—cities growing unprecedentedly; see facts stated and predictions of William E. Curtis, America's most famous newspaper special writer, now touring Western Canada (in Chicago Record-Herald and Minneapolis Journal, September issues); also of the great financier, Thomas Lawson (Boston Post, August 10); also leading American agricultural experts, including Professor (of Soil Fertility) Petrit of Illinois University; editors of Nebraska Farmer, Farmers' Review (Chicago), Farmstead (Minneapolis), and others—all predict untold riches within near future for Western Canada; this conservative Liverpool corporation owns properties in 21 principal western cities, representing investment of million dollars, already showing profits of $400,000 within two years; both city and country properties offer similar opportunities; you can share these profits—staying where you are—running no risk—investing small or large sums at your convenience; a limited number of investment units, but not a stock-selling nor partnership affair; no uncertainty; we send full particulars, maps, proofs, and statistics; by our "non-forfeit of payments" plan investors have at least nine months to determine whether to complete investments or accept money back within a year, with 6 per cent. interest; over one-third of the limit has been passed in three months; recent investments range from $16,000 cash down to $10 per month for ten months; none barred; Canada's largest bank handles our funds; highest commercial rating; references on request; one investor becomes a nucleus for a group; remember, this is not an ordinary proposition; you have nine months' time to satisfy yourself fully before you need decide; now, don't infer; don't guess; don't delay; write for particulars to-day; we are sure it will interest four out of five that write; you run no risk; write now. CANADIAN CITY AND TOWN PROPERTIES, LTD., 616 Stobart blk., Portage av., Winnipeg, Canada.

Foss or Frothingham

A Masterful Man Against a Colorless Candidate

The Republican organization has nominated Louis A. Frothingham for Governor by methods consistent with the character of his political activities and upon a platform which is consistent with his entire public record.

Mr. Frothingham is a machine made man from the bottom to the top of his career, and his record, like his present platform, contains not a single instance that indicates any appreciation of the conditions and times in which he is living. To Mr. Frothingham the poet's great axiom, "we must upward still and onward who would keep abreast of truth," is a meaningless gibber. Time goes on, civilization advances, conditions change, but Mr. Frothingham stands pat.

His mental enslavement to the corporation interests is without parallel in this State. A man of finer intellect would occasionally see the truth even through the densest prejudice and selfishness. But Mr. Frothingham has never had a spasm of intellectual freedom. Lacking the talents which would advance him by his own resources, he has made a virtue of a necessity, and has advanced by a blind obedience to machine and corporation influences.

A Republican organization which, for years, has crushed the ambition of young men whose talents might make them free, found in Mr. Frothingham's commonplace ability nothing to fear. That is the whole story of Mr. Frothingham's advancement; too ordinary to be feared, too obedient to be distrusted by political machine or corporation.

To the man who believes that present conditions in this State and country are not perfect, Mr. Frothingham's record is probably the worst public record in America. If it is not the worst, then there is none worse, for his is 100 per cent. bad.

It is unbelievable, but it is true, that a careful investigation does not bring to light a single vote or act of his in which he took the man's side against the dollar during all the years he served in the Legislature.

Our Massachusetts Legislature is not all bad, nor is a majority of it bad all the time. Often when the backs of Senators Lodge and Crane are turned, the Legislature passes a good law.

During Mr. Frothingham's term of service many splendid laws were proposed which have since become accepted institutions of the State, and are now working out their beneficent results to the advantage of us all. But to help these measures Mr. Frothingham never lent a hand.

Against them his vote was always recorded, and against them his voice would always be raised if the talent of debate had not been denied him.

Perfect servant of the interests and of the Republican machine, he has been steadily rewarded until now he seeks the highest reward of all. The machine and the interests propose to give it to him if they can.

Without business experience, for his income was inherited: without professional experience, for he is a lawyer who does not practice, Mr. Frothingham presents a sorry contrast to Governor Foss, whose great abilities no one has ever denied. This consummate business man, with no inheritance except his brains and his energy, has built mills and factories in this Commonwealth, giving employment to thousands of men.

Governor Foss has staked his all in Massachusetts and in her future. He has given her one year of his great talents.

During this year he has tried to give the people power to enact a law directly if the Legislature should refuse to enact it, and to veto any bad law which the Legislature had passed.

He tried to bring the railroads more under public control by reorganizing and extending the powers of the railroad commission. He approved the compelling of the Railroad Commission to grant the Boston & Eastern a certificate of exigency, against the opposition of the established railroads.

He preserved our docks for all the railroads, after his predecessor had surrendered the State's best dock to the existing railroad monopoly.

He urged the income tax in order that the rich might be obliged to pay more nearly their fair share of the taxes.

He urged and approved the adoption of a workingmen's compensation act, which though now imperfect, is a good beginning for something better soon.

He urged and approved the securing to workingmen of a trial by jury in those cases in which they had been grievously deprived of that inalienable right of American citizenship.

He urged and approved the eight-hour law.

He approved the fifty-four-hour law.

He urged the adoption of a State Finance Commission.

He urged the election of the United States Senators by the people.

He compelled a consolidation of the West End and Elevated Railways upon terms favorable to the public, obtaining three new subways and preventing the West End Street Railway from receiving an unwarranted gift of three million dollars, and the Elevated from receiving a fifty-year control of our underground highways.

With this record of one year in office, with an intellectual stature that towers above Mr. Frothingham's, with ten times the personal stake in Massachusetts industries that Mr. Frothingham has, who will be the choice of the people?

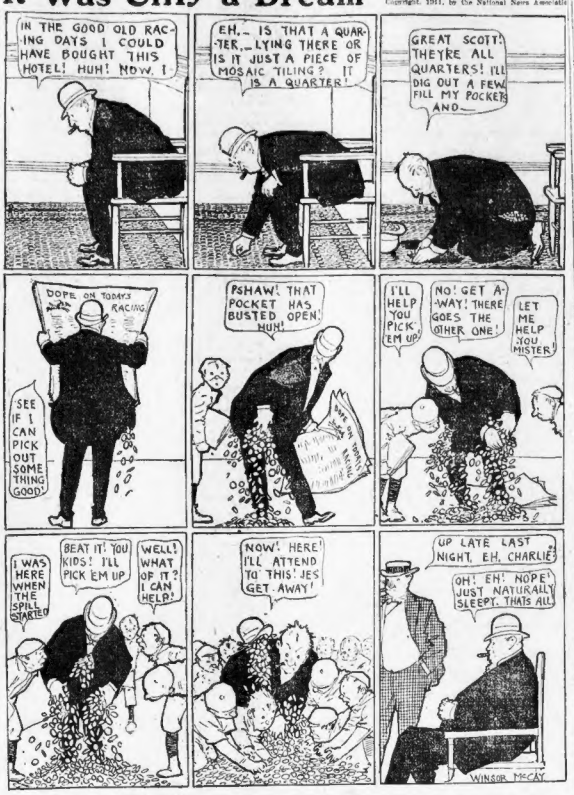

Which type of man will the people tell the youth of the State to emulate if they hope for success in public life?

The contrast was never greater between the achiever and the time server, between the man who progresses and the man who drags, the man who forges ahead by the force of his own brains and energy and the man who is boosted because he is commonplace and harmless.

Help to Make the Columbus Night Water Carnival a Success—Enter Your Boat at Once

Everybody in this section of the State who owns a motor boat ought to enter it in the Motor Boat Parade and Water Carnival which will be held in celebration of Columbus Day on the evening on October 12 on Charles River Basin.

Too little of the carnival spirit, which makes life in European cities and even such American cities as New Orleans so enjoyable, is displayed in this section of the country.

Boston people do not witness nearly enough pageants, parades and beautiful spectacles, which would make them forget business cares and the high cost of living for a little while.

The Charles River Basin, which has been recently made into a park for the people of Greater Boston, is an ideal location for water fetes and celebrations. Venice is not better suited to carnivals than Boston if she makes proper use of the Charles River Basin.

The Boston AMERICAN originated the idea of a water carnival to wind up the boating season and appropriately celebrate the discovery of America by Columbus.

The Metropolitan Park Commission, the city of Boston, the Cambridge Carnival Association and other organizations immediately came forward with offers of assistance and are doing everything possible to make the carnival a success.

It is up to the owners of motor boats. Numerous valuable prizes are offered and very many entries have already been made, but there cannot be too many entries in an event of this kind. The public wants to see the longest and biggest kind of a parade, and the promoters of the carnival want to provide one which will establish a record for the long line of carnivals that are sure to follow on the Charles River Basin.

Make your motor boat as pretty and attractive as possible. Display your ingeniousness and your originality. You will find the prizes well worth the effort.

You will be sure to have a good time yourself and you will help to give the people of Boston a good time.

Please fill out the entry blank printed on another page and enter your boat at once. There is no entrance fee.

A full description of the carnival plans, with a list of entries, will be printed in next Sunday's AMERICAN.

If Woman Had Three Wishes, What Would She Ask?

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

Copyright, 1911, by the National News Association

WERE the fates to grant to each woman one wish—the one thing she wants most in the world—it would be Love!

Were the fates to grant to each man one wish—the one thing he wants most in the world—it might be Love or it might be Power or Wealth.

But with women the wish would be universal. They may conceal it, deny it, be about it in countless ways, but in their hearts they yearn for the one thing—Love.

And if the fates were to grant three wishes, as did the fairy of the old peasant legend, for the woman, they would still all three hinge on Love.

Love. Protection and Personal Beauty! Had she the courage to be wholly honest, and she so rarely has, these would be the things she would ask for. Because these are the things she wants most.

No doubt there are many things that would be more commendable for her to want than beauty. But this article is not written about the things she should want, but about those she does want.

And she wants beauty because it would make much more secure her greatest need—Love. You will say nobility of mind and character would do that. Possibly. But those are things she can attain for herself. They do not have to be granted by a special dispensation of fate.

And I am not sure but that she is right. Given the happiness that would come from Love and Protection, it would not be hard to cultivate an exemplary disposition.

One Wish for Happiness Might Seem to Cover All

Doubtless someone will say here that if one has three wishes, why not wish for happiness, which would cover everything—for, in the end, that is what all our wishes are to attain.

But we prefer to choose the form of our happiness. One of the very happiest women I know is my good-natured, slovenly washerwoman. Yet how many of us would be willing to become a good-natured, slovenly washerwoman in order to be happy?

Should you deny that personal beauty would be one of almost every woman's three wishes, you have only to look about you at their frantic efforts to retain, attain and feign it!

Suppose every woman should suddenly cease struggling to keep the physical attractions she has, or to restore those she has lost, or to acquire those she never had. Suppose every woman should be content to discard all the artifices of toilet and go out dressed as simply as men dress. How many hundred thousand firms would go into bankruptcy?

Try to conceive of this in its vastness. Don't think only of the retail stores. Think of all the great jobbing wholesale and manufacturing concerns that would be closed. Think of what per cent. of every country's industries are for the production of goods contributing to the adornment and beautifying of women. Think of the great business interests of the world that owe their existence only to a woman's vanity.

This may seem a digression. But it is to anticipate the denial that one of a woman's three wishes would be for personal attractions. Almost every woman would admit the first two, but few would be honest enough to admit the third. Many will say they would wish for a less material thing—some higher quality of mind or character.

But would they?

Every Woman Likes to Be Taken Care Of

What proportion of a woman's time and money is spent on the improvement of her mind or the elevation of her soul—in comparison to that spent on her personal adornment?

There are, of course, exceptions to this as to everything. But it is of the average woman I write. And the average woman would rather have a beautiful face and a beautiful body than all the knowledge of the Sphinx.

And the other wish—Protection?

Does not every woman want it? However capable and self-supporting and seemingly self-sufficient she may be—in her heart she yearns to be "taken care of."

I believe no woman ever willingly stood alone. It is instinctive for her to want to be sheltered, shielded and provided for by the man she loves.

This is, I know, a period of "careers" for women. There is much talk of her "freedom" and her "independence." But no woman really wants to be independent.

So earnest however brilliant can appease a woman's heart hunger. For a few years, perhaps, she may deceive herself into thinking that it was—that her work or her art is sufficient. But she pays dearly for her sophistry. For, in the end, comes the woman's inevitable longing for "her man and her child."

All the abstract admiration and praise of the world can never compensate to a woman for the personal, ardent love of one man.

For without it, to a woman, nothing else counts.

An Extraordinary Situation in Saugus

There will be enough Sunday AMERICANS to go around in Saugus next Sunday, and every copy will contain a big feature article that will interest Saugus vitally.

Incidentally Mr. Rowse's remarks about Mr. Noera will alone make the paper worth while to Saugus.
